

DEEPS and SHALLOWS

Explaining "The Lord made women without a sense of humor so that they could love men instead of laughing at them."

DREAMS Yield to other dreams, my thoughts, It is enough of him...

Yet life is more like sparkling wine, Shines more like pouring stream, Full of zest and vehemence

REMARKS FROM THE GALLERY

Let's get the drum and bugle out, Let's feast with meat and wine, Let's wave our banners, leap and shout;

But here's the quail that leaves me solemn, The ointment's only fly: Will she high-hat our local column?

Oh, I dunno, it aint so much, Makin' the line, with pomes, and such.

I get ideas that are just dandy, But I don't have a pencil handy.

WAR IS LIKE SHERMAN SAID

Rickey: (You louse!) So you think you're pretty smart—pulling that cute little stunt on yours truly.

For you set, Rickey, dear, I'm not even disturbed. I'm as calm as a May morning. But looky, eh, even if you did come through four major engagements without a scratch

Of course you understand I'm writing this more in sorrow than in anger. Don't think I'm upset, Rickey—

Look, guy, remember that cute Marine I mentioned to you—and you hit the ceiling. Okay. Keep your your ear on the ground, swabby.

Maybe I'm supposed to return your ring. For some other girl, huh? No, Rickey, not me. You gave it to me and it's mine.

Come to think of it, I'm glad this happened. If you can wring tears from my heart at this stage, what would the future be?

It was certainly unfortunate (or was it?) that I opened the thin letter first. Well, it was addressed to me, wasn't it? So, naturally, finding a sealed, unaddressed letter inside I thought it was a sort of gag—

I opened it and jumped in—right up to my neck, without even noticing the beginning. But the thing, didn't make sense. "I liked you so well that I'd like to know you better."

ory. He's gone back a whole year and a half. "Your lovely blue eyes." Hah. Mine are brown. And that's where I caught on—hah, ha!—and I looked at the beginning. It said "Dearest Maisie!"

Well, the other letter explained everything, I guess. You'd lost Maisie's address and wanted me to direct the envelope and send it on.

All right. I did just that. And now, my fine feathered friend, if there's anything else you want me to do to add to your string (of suckers) do call on me. But count me out. I'm such a stupid little number—just dopey enough to play Cupid for my boy friend and another girl.

And so, little sailor-boy-with-a-girl-in-every-port (but not this one) I sign myself,

Yours helpfully, Stupid Cupid. I.B.
