The Column thanks contributors for their loyal support in 1944...

December, 1944 (NOT SO LONG PAST)

December nineteen-forty-four, What is it we are waiting for? Butter instead of margarine...

What is the date? I said before This is December forty-four. Our country's free, we are living— Thank God, we can do the giving.

The China Pig

I sat at the desk and made out charts. Then I remembered that I had not placed the coin in the bank— the china sow, a gift from the old doctor.

She must be almost ready to spill her load of fifty-cent pieces, bond-buying money.

It was 2 a.m., all quiet but the cadence of snores. All the aged patients asleep. I stood the sow before me and thrust the coin in her back.

I gloated as I removed them and snapped the pig together again. She began to yell— Holy St. Michael! How she yelled!

Colored movies of the activities of Tamasee school will be shown. The two D.A.R. Approved Schools, solely supported by the Daughters of the American Revolution, are the Tamasee D.A.R. school at Tamasee, So. Carolina, and the Kate Duncan Smith school at Grant, Alabama.

The Tamasee school celebrated its 25th anniversary Oct. 29. It has grown into a school of 337 boys and girls and covers 495 acres of land, has 26 buildings and accommodates children from 80 mountain districts.

From these schools have gone forth boys and girls into the services of our country to win distinction. The D.A.R. contributes, also, to the support of many other southern mountain schools, and as the seeds of patriotic education are sown in the minds of these young people, so shall our country reap the harvest in the future of America.

middle age is disillusionment with Santa Claus. This columnist has long ago given up whispering among the whiskers around his ear. This year she became her own Santa Claus, the only sure way.

For more years than she will admit, it has been her ambition to own Grove's Dictionary of Music (5 vol. with supplement). In libraries it does not circulate. You read it with one eye on the clock, the man with the broom jingling his closing keys in your face.

Again realization falls short of anticipation. Five volumes beside the pillow add up to a lot of sharp corners!

Baby, How Sweet You Smell

Advertisements of American-made perfumes monopolize the profit-sections of Christmas issues of the sleek-paper magazines and the metropolitan newspapers. The eye-catching brand names and fragrance-worded text of these ads may grasp the fancy of American buyers and make it tough sledding for the imported name-perfumes to recapture the postwar market.

The perfume ad-writers apparently have robbed Roget's Thesaurus of all its enticing, inciting and aphrodisiac synonyms, and they even have coined new to spice their copy. The exquisite, precious, discreet and indiscreet fumes of angels' breath are touted as dream-makers and heart-unlockers.

The witchery and enchantment of the aromatic concoctions of the old and new feminine argumenters really are a devil's brew. The ravishing pulse-quickeners of wartime incense and myrrh have the subtle distinction of instilling thought-transfusion — and such thoughts!

Oh baby, how sweet you smell! This is one Christmas when virtuous old Santa Claus better wear a gas mask, or he'll get jail-baiting ideas while filling the rayon socks hanging on the fireplace mantels. —R.M.R. in Emporia Gazette.

The Wounded Don't Want Pity

By Benjamin de Casseres. We have thousands of wounded veterans. We will have more.

Nothing — Nothing! — is too good for our boys who slugged it out in the Pacific and European area with the two most savage enemies of modern times.

But aside from the material help we are giving our wounded we must extend to them psychological — that is mental and spiritual — help.

They must take their places with us in the work of building up a new strong America.

Our wounded must not be a class set aside.

(The above, taken from the Legion Post News, is a reprint of an editorial that appeared in the Herald American on Nov. 30, 1944, and sent to us for our consideration by Lester Benston.)

Lake Co. Leads State In Sale of Seals

In spite of the fact that there is still a long way to go until final returns are in, Lake county is leading the state in the sale of Christmas seals, according to reports from the Illinois Tuberculosis association in Springfield, as of Dec. 25.

Lake county had reported sales amounting to $22,885.35, followed closely by Winnebago county with $21,219.39. Kane county was running a good third with $21,412.16.

While these reports are encouraging, Miss Orpha L. White, executive secretary of the Lake county Tuberculosis association, will not be satisfied until she is assured of the additional $21,000 necessary from this year's seal sale for the purchase of a mobile chest x-ray unit to be used in the association's case-finding program. The modern unit would make it possible to x-ray the chests of nearly every man, woman and child in the county to determine early symptoms of the disease which Christmas seals are fighting all through the year. They are the sole support of the organization.
