

DEEPS and SHALLOWS

A column of our Third Army is pushing toward Erfurt and Eisenach in Thuringia. Eisenach is known to fugue fans as the birthplace of Johann Sebastian Bach (1685-1750). He was called the "Eisenach Bach" to distinguish him from his many relatives of the same name and in the same business.

From the earliest musical ancestor, Veit Bach in the 16th century, there were over sixty Bachs who were well known by their contemporaries, and all but seven were organists, cantors, or town musicians, and many of them eminent in their profession.

Bus-Riding Busy-Body

The bus was crowded. As I clung to a strap and looked around I thought: Well, I'll not find any occasion to be a busy-body among these people.

I found a seat with a young girl whose head was bent over a thick book. I could not see what she was reading but I did notice that she wore a sparkling new wedding ring. I had given up hopes of finding a story, when she closed the book with a bang and turned to me.

"O, anything requires practice." "That's the trouble. I've never had a chance to practice anything except how to enter a room and which fork to use."

Her charming Southern accent revealed her origin, but I was interested in her baking experience, so I questioned her, "Didn't you learn at home about bread-making and such things?"

"No. I never did anything practical, and now I can see what I've missed. I've been married to Bob for three months and I can't prepare a meal."

Her large blue eyes filled with tears as she continued. "He washes the dishes and helps me and he tries to eat what I cook, but I'm getting discouraged. I'd feel better if he didn't make fun of me."

"That's better than having him angry." "I suppose so, but the other night he embarrassed me to death."

"What did he do?" "Well, I'd tried to make some bread a few days before, and such a time as I had! The dough stuck to my fingers and got all over everything. Finally I got it into the oven and baked it for hours and hours."

"How did it turn out?" "It was hard as a rock. I tried to cut one loaf, and I broke the bread-knife."

"You probably baked it too long." "I suppose I did. I was so disappointed I flopped on the davenport and cried. Bob cleaned up the kitchen and said we'd throw the bread out and forget it."

"What was it he did to embarrass you?" "It was a few nights later when we had guests. Bob said he had something to show them, a new ornament for the mantle. He went to his basement work-shop and brought up that other loaf of bread. It looked so hard and shiny I couldn't believe it was the same loaf. He passed it around the room all the while making witty remarks about my cooking."

"I supposed everyone laughed." "They just roared, because he'd given the bread a coat of varnish!"

Jeanette MacMurchy, president, will preside. Roger Strecker, treasurer, will give a report of the contributions to war — patriotic and charitable organizations made during the year. Grace Van Ornum, social chairman, will review ten years activities and social events. Robert Weddell, chairman of the junior group, will review their activities.

The nominating committee will be present to make up its new slate of officers for the coming year.

Following the short business meeting the members, their parents and friends, and members of the D.A.R. will gather for refreshments planned by the hostess and her assistants, Mrs. Mary Helms, Mrs. Robert Weddell, Mrs. Harry Porter, Mrs. Frank Lynch, Mrs. William C. Melohn.

Boy Meets Girl, Handcuffs Girl — Surprise—No Keys!

Good-looking M. P. Sgt. Larry O'Brien, of Fort Sheridan, won front page prominence this week as a result of being an entertaining guest of the William Bergers of Evanston. During the pre-dinner lull on Easter day, he showed them a number of clever tricks of the trade, climaxing them by clapping a pair of hand-cuffs on himself and 17-year-old Eleanor Catherine before you could say "Jack Robinson." A good trick—but it back-fired. No keys.

Dinner cooled while the Bergers phoned frantically but futilely for someone to release the lock. Finally they contacted a locksmith who was "willin'."

Upon being released, the glib-tongued Irishman from Detroit, Mich., had but one remark left in him. "Whew!" he ejaculated.

Mrs. Hecht Hostess to Seeing Eye Committee

Mrs. Frederick C. Hecht of Highland Park was hostess at her home on Friday, March 30, to members of the Highland Park committee of the 1945 Seeing Eye membership enrollment. The meeting was for the purpose of discussing plans for the enrollment effort which opens April 17 in Chicago and suburbs. Mrs. Hecht is chairman of the Highland Park team, which is part of the enrollment's North Shore division of which Mrs. John Dern of Winnetka is chairman.

Guest speaker at Monday's meeting was Mr. Morris S. Frank, vice-president and travelling ambassador of The Seeing Eye, Inc., the Morristown, New Jersey, school that educates dogs as guides for the blind. Mr. Frank pioneered the use of the first Seeing Eye Dog in the United States and was accompanied on Friday by his constant companion, "Buddy," his second dog guide. He has travelled thousands of miles throughout the country in the past sixteen years, lecturing on the value of a dog guide to men and women who have lost their sight. His talk brought out that blind people do not need sympathy but encouragement to lead active, normal lives. He himself is an arresting example of the independence open to those who have lost their sight.

The Seeing Eye is supported through memberships and public contributions. Workers on Mrs. Hecht's Highland Park team include, Mrs. A. S. Bauer, Mrs. Paul B. Boyd, Mrs. Leonard Davidow, Mrs. Walter Fathauer, Mrs. Leslie R. Gage, Mrs. J. M. Maxwell, Mrs. Robert Metzner, Mrs. Baldwin Newman, Mrs. Clarence Parliament, Mrs. Karl Peterson, Countess Anthony Potacki, Mrs. Ben Rau, Mrs. George Reeves, Mrs. I. S. Riggs, Mrs. G. W. Ross, Jr., Mrs. Henry C. Schroeder, Mrs. Henry Stein, Mrs. George Strecker, Mrs. Bessie Tenney, Mrs. Karl Velde, and Mrs. John B. Wilbor.

Other divisions and their chairmen are: Mrs. Tracy L. Turner, Jr., for the north side; Mrs. O. B. Huffaker, south side, and Mrs. John S. Lord, for the western area.

I find the great thing in this world is not so much where we stand, as in what direction we are moving.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.
