New Insect Repellent To Be Available Soon

The insect repellent, known to thousands of G.I.'s in the Pacific, Africa, Sicily, and Italy, as "Formula 6-12," will shortly be available in limited quantities for farmers, yachtsmen, sportsmen, and others to use in insect-infested areas for the remainder of the season.
Insect repellent 6-12, originally developed to protect soldiers from the malaria mosquito, is given much credit for its assistance in the control of malaria and other insect-borne diseases that plagued our fighting men in advanced areas in the jungle-covered tropics. It will prove equally valuable to farmers and sportsmen because it repels black flies, gnats, fleas, and chiggers, as well as nuisance mosquitoes.
This repellent is applied to all exposed areas of the skin or to the clothing where insects are biting through. It does not injure the skin, nor affect clothing, and furnishes complete protection for several hours.
This new repellent is rated as 6 to 7 times more effective than 100 per cent citronella and it has a much more pleasing odor, somewhat like witch hazel.
A good story teller is a person who has a good memory and hopes other people haven't.—Irving S. Cobb.

JAZZ
An editorial on jazz quoted from The Living Age, describing jazz as barbarous music of the jungle, suggestive of cannibalistic orgy... SCUTTLEBUT FROM THE PACIFIC

The Guadalcanal campaign alone brought 36 medals of Honor to the marine corps, as compared to 8 received by the corps during the whole of World War I. In addition to these 36 are 6 won in the Solomons, 4 for Kwajalein, 4 for Pelieu, 3 for Tarawa, Guam and Saipan, 2 for Midway and one each for Makin Island and Eniwetok. Nine of these honors were won by aviators.

Guadalcanal cost the marines 4,290 in casualties—1092 dead, 2643 wounded in action, 527 suffering from combat fatigue, 28 missing in action, according to official reports from marine corps headquarters.

During their first month of operation from 2 airfields on Okinawa, marine fighters knocked down 209 Jap planes while losing only 4 in combat.

JAP INFILTRATION
Even in the darkness it was apparent that three men marching with the night relief column of troops toward the Shuri front beyond the front lines. But the column marched without a break, fearing that bullets would hit marines near the Japs.

For five minutes the column proceeded as usual, meanwhile quietly devising a plan. Then word was passed down the column. Suddenly a marine automatic rifleman slipped off the road. Marines walking near the Japs dropped to the ground. The Japs were dispatched quickly without marine casualties or waste of ammunition.

MUD ON CHAPEL FLOOR
In the Ryukyu Islands a chaplain solved the problem of muddy chapel floor and transportation of sand. Contrary to custom, he asked for a contribution the following Sunday. Each communicant was asked to bring a box of coral ash or sand.

COOPERATION
OKINAWA—On account of heavy casualties among navy hospital corpsmen, the 6th marine division sector agreed that all wounded men return unaided to the medical station 200 yards back.
"We refused to let any more corpsmen risk their lives," explained a marine to doctors and corpsmen who took him into the operating tent. He had been shot through the chest by a sniper.

"Hey, Mac," he called to a marine on the operating table, "did you keep the agreement?"
"Yeah," was the reply, "I made it back."
His left foot had been blown off by a mortar shell.

"MUSCLES"
An army amtrack driver on Okinawa has a pet monkey named "Muscles," who hates Japs and knows their smell. When near one he will scream at the top of his powerful lungs.
One night the driver, spent by hours of grueling toil, was awakened from sleep by screams from "Muscles." He awoke in time to see a Jap high-tailing it away from the amtrack.

Examining it, he found a string of grenades set to explode when he set the vehicle rolling.

A Louisiana man missed death three times in a single day. Once shell fragments ripped his pack apart. Another shell landed only 50 yards from him, and machine-gun bullets tore off his cartridge belt. The night while asleep in his tent, he was awakened by a Jap. He grabbed the Jap by the back of his neck and stabbed him to death.

A Virginia boy was covering the withdrawal of his platoon from a dangerous ridge. He saw a Jap and threw a grenade. It failed to explode and the Jap threw it back. Still no explosion. The next time the Jap hurled it it went off, but by this time the Virginia was out of range.

Railroads Need More Workers in Chicago Area

"Today's need is for 5,754 skilled and unskilled workers in the immediate area here in Chicago," says Lester Brown, Chicago area director of the War Manpower commission, recently. "We know the recruitment campaign begun early this week already is bearing fruit, although there will be no definite figures on net increases of railroad working forces available until some time next week."
"With continued cooperation from the army, the Office of Defense Transportation, and the Railroad Retirement board, we expect to be able to meet Chicago's quota for the railroads by our September 1 deadline."

WHAT'S COOLING?
Signs of the Times...
Displayed in a Los Angeles restaurant was this sign, "Waitress wanted. Can start as Vice-President. Salary, too."

A Kenosha, Wisconsin, grocer posted in his store a sign reading, "Free... Any article you find in this store marked above ceiling prices... Free."

Eggs...
In an eggshell, here are the answers from the War Food Administration for tight supply. The number of eggs produced this year is a bit down from last year's record. Military needs are increasing although Lend Lease requirements are down. But the real cause for the pinch is that civilians are buying eggs at an abnormally high rate, due to the shortages of other protein foods—chiefly meat.

Tomatoes...
If a tomato plant gives a good average yield of 6 pounds of tomatoes, this will be enough to can about two quart jars of tomatoes or juice. On the average, 9 or 10 plants will yield a bushel of tomatoes—enough for 15 or 20 quarts of tomatoes or juice.

Canning...
National Safety Council recommends the use of pressure cookers rather than OVEN CANNING.

A WARTIME CALL FOR PATRIOTIC WOMEN!
Help us speed the thousands of telephone calls being put through by our boys at Ft. Sheridan. Do this as a telephone operator.
Thousands of servicemen are returning daily from overseas and their first thoughts are to telephone home. That's why the number of long distance telephone calls has swamped the switchboards in the local exchanges as they are sped on their way with the returning soldier's "Hello, Mom."
We're doing everything possible to get those calls through. But we need help. By going to work as a telephone operator you'll be helping a serviceman and doing a patriotic job.
No experience is necessary. You can work either full or part time. Surroundings are pleasant and you'll be paid while learning. Start helping the boys today.
