The Mark IV was advancing, crushing the 30th infantry in their holes. Grabbing an infantryman's bazooka, Choate chased the tank, passing through the enemy infantry skirmish line, in doing so, and discharged the rocket, immobilizing the tank, which the enemy then used as a pillbox.

Dashing back 75 yards to his own lines, Choate replenished his rocket supply, and, returning to within 10 yards of the tank, smashed the turret. He wounded two of the enemy crew with a pistol and dropped a grenade into the tank.

The German tank officer was captured, and the German infantry became disorganized.

S/Sgt. Choate also fought with the 3rd division throughout the Tunisian campaign.
