through its streets until in 1945 it was finally liberated from occupation and from further destruction. Today little remains but the site and the spirit of Warsaw which, together, are sure to produce a rebuilt city in a reconstructed Poland.

What that "reconstructed Poland" will be is still too early to judge. We have met President Bierut, Vice-President Szwalbe, and practically all the other government leaders. We have visited with citizens of all shades of opinion, seen Russian and Polish soldiers in the streets by day and heard the rattle of gun fire at night. Thousands of cattle and horses, hundreds of wagon loads of farm equipment and loot from cities, pass through Warsaw from west to east every day as the Russian army straggles home in horse-drawn wagons. There is much argument but little real doubt as to where the supplies have come from and as to whether they are bound!

Warsaw is an uncertain, quivering city both architecturally and politically. In the week preceding and including our visit, over 100 people were killed in the streets or in buildings by tumbling masonry. It is estimated that 50,000 human bodies are still covered by debris within the city limits. When winter comes the heavy snow will cause many more decremented buildings to collapse. By winter's end, also, Poland's political picture should be greatly clarified. Thus far, there is little evidence of free speech or free press, freedom of action and freedom of choice. The Polish zloty which is its basic currency unit is being printed in Moscow. "It has no established exchange rate. Its "official" exchange rate which is disregarded entirely was 5.3 zlotys for a dollar. The "diplomatic" rate is 11 1/2 zlotys for a dollar. On the black market a dollar will buy from 150 to 350 zlotys; during our stay here we were advised the black market rate is currently 260 zlotys to a dollar.

A City of Contrasts
Ambassador Lane of our American Embassy and his staff have been here over two weeks. They have thus far bought everything on credit as they refuse to buy exchange on the black market and they can afford to live here on no other basis. Our dinner at the Polonia hotel the first night as the guests of the Ambassador cost something over 800 zlotys per plate — at the diplomatic rate he is expected to pay, this would run well over $70 per plate.

Except for the absence of water — all water in Warsaw is badly contaminated and there is no ice — it was a better dinner than one could buy in Washington before VJ Day. But it was a hard meal to eat with the realization in mind that outside in the streets people were starving and homeless while their foodstuffs moved ceaselessly through the streets in an Easterly direction!

What Of Tomorrow?
After two days of walking thru rubble and crawling thru ruins one still has a feeling that the Poles will rebuild Warsaw. They are a determined, dogged, people.

Out of the war has come a new song for Poland. It is called "Warsaw" and when it is sung, or played people stop their eating or working and tears moisten their eyes. "I know that you are not the same; That dark blood has washed all your streets; I'm proud that you know no shame Though now you have caused me to weep. And now though you're low in the mud. I'll build with my own sweat and blood! So Warsaw shall rise once more to her might; I swear on my heart and my life!"

There is real hope and promise for a people who look up from dark cellars to sing out a challenge like that!

H. P. Social Service—

Noteworthy was her cooperation with the Highland Park hospital, the American Red Cross, the Highland Park municipal agencies and the social welfare agencies on the North Shore. One of her outstanding characteristics is her kindness. The problems which came to her were guarded faithfully that none might be hurt. Her insight in solving human problems made a place for her in the community which never can be filled. The members of the governing board and the directors at large deeply regret the retirement of Mrs. Flinn from the organization and wish her many years of happiness in the community to which she has rendered such valued service.

Mrs. Fisher after paying a tribute to Mrs. Flinn stressed that this is a family service agency which is eager to meet the needs of the community. The services include temporary financial aid, family budget counseling, aid to the returning veteran and his family, assistance where there has been death, divorce or some maladjustment, work with adolescent children where there is a strained relationship with parents or with the pre-delinquent so as to prevent court hearings or other difficult situations facing families or individuals.

The Highland Park Social Service with an experienced staff and using the resources of the community stands ready to help bring about a solution of these problems.

Local Nurse—

captured at Wake and some women missionaries. A high spot in the lieutenant's experiences was when she shook hands with Admiral Halsey — "a grand, every-day man." She also met Admiral Nimitz and had lunch with the author of "Guadalcanal Diary" — Former Gov. Stassen of Minnesota was in charge of transferring prisoners aboard the Benovolence. Among them were British, Dutch, and Italians. The plan was either to go to Manila or Guam to unload or, much better, fill up with American boys and "hit Frisco." The weather was damp and foggy, with plenty of fine rain. A war correspondent came aboard and interviewed the lieutenant and two other nurses, promising to send word of their whereabouts to relatives.

Yokohama
In a later letter Lt. Riskedahl tells of a 2-hour trip through Yokohama. Ruin and destruction were everywhere. Japs were trudging along in rags and wooden shoes, with even small boys and old men carrying babies tied to their backs. Women were searching among the ruins for remnants of bedding — preparing meals in the open. — Over the entire country hangs a peculiar odor which is far from pleasant. Outlandish prices are charged for souvenirs. Cigarettes and soap are the best barter.

American Attitude Changed

The entire American attitude has changed since V-J day, the lieutenant says. "Home" is the main topic, and thrilled as she is by the history-making events she has witnessed, she, too, longs for the good old USA.

Increased Need for Red Cross Workers

There is, according to the American Red Cross, a greater need for camp and hospital workers now than there was during the war. These volunteer workers help to provide recreation for the service men in military hospitals, in addition to arranging for necessary equipment to be provided in the hospitals.

The Camp and Hospital committee of the Red Cross has broken ground for the erection of a green house at Vaughan General hospital, Chicago, and has plans for furnishing a convalescent room at Fort Sheridan. During the past three months, a total of 312 programs has been undertaken by the committee in six military hospitals. For the month of October, 180 programs are planned.

Further information may be obtained at the Highland Park Red Cross desk in the Public Service store, 521 Central avenue, between the hours of 1 and 4 p.m. every day except Saturday and Sunday. Those wishing to offer their services are interviewed at the Chicago Red Cross headquarters, 529 S. Wabash avenue.

Among the items needed at this time for the hospitals are the following: Fort Sheridan station hospital — wrapping table for patients' use, small radios for ward use, matted milk machine, electric corn popper, cookies, tablecloths, books and bowls for serving popcorn, fruit, etc.

Great Lakes hospital — musical items, including guitars, saxophone, trumpet, clarinet and small radios, serving trays, pop corn poppers, wooden bowls, ice cream dippers, books, coin board, stamp albums, card tables, gift wrapping and ribbon for patients' use. McIntire-Lawrence unit of great Lakes hospital — musical items, supplies for parties, handicraft supplies and games. Hines hospital — electric victrola, card tables and chairs, smoking stands, portable boxing ring and punching bag, typewriters, current sheet music and subscription to radio magazines. Separation center, Ft. Sheridan — furniture for lounge rooms which are used by men about to be discharged from the army.

Tragic Toll From Careless Fires

A compelling reason for observance of Fire Prevention Week, October 7-13, is underlined in the following statistics on the destruction and human suffering caused by fires in the United States, provided by Fire Chief Hennig, and based on figures recently compiled by the National Fire Protection association:

650,000 fires last year caused approximately 10,000 deaths and destroyed property valued at $450,000,000.

1,000 homes are attacked by fire every day, or at the rate of one every 90 seconds.

Daily there are 1000 home fires, 130 store fires, 7 church fires, 7 school fires and 3 hospital fires.

Yet, according to Chief Hennig, 90 per cent of all fires are caused by sheer carelessness.
