In Illinois the Department of Public Welfare is, on the contrathe main objective, according to the director, that of providing more institutional care at a cost of two or three times the present budget of approximately five and one-half million dollars.

Institutional care cannot in it self constitute a welfare program but is only one part of a broader and more constructive plan. The emphasis should be rather on minimizing the fieed for institutions by providing more adequate preventive measures so there will be less physical and mental illness, less delinquency, fewer broken 10:45 a m.
