PUBLIC LIBRARY

Lectures on European Writers
Samuel K. Workman, assistant professor in the English department of Northwestern university, is coming to Highland Park to give two lectures on modern European writers. These talks will be given at the public library in the auditorium which is reached by the west entrance of the building. The public is invited. There is no admission charge. The time is 8:15.

Mark on your calendar, two Tuesday evenings in February, the 5th and 19th. On the first date, Mr. Workman will discuss the French writer, Andre Gide; on the 19th, the Italian author Ignazio Silone.

To interpret the work of a representative writer means to interpret a people. If we are to understand the people of other countries, we should read their literature, either in the original or the translation.

To many young people who have attended Mr. Workman's lectures at Northwestern, he has opened a broader understanding of continental people. Let him do the same for us in Highland Park.

New Books Added

On these chilly winter evenings when it's fun to stay indoors near the fire, it's also lots of fun to have a hobby to pursue. Hobbies may consist of a variety of activities. The Highland Park public library has added several new books on various subjects which may help you to choose a new hobby or to continue an old one.

For the stamp collector there are three new books, two volumes of "Standard Stamp Catalogue" for 1946, and a specialized "United Stamp Catalogue," also for 1946.

Then for the coin collector there is the 1946 "Standard Catalogue of United States Coins from 1652 to the Present Day." This volume has many plates of photographs and lists of values of the various coins.

Frank Harper's new book, "Skiing for the Millions," is the book you outdoor sport enthusiasts have been looking for. Not only does it contain excellent diagrams and photographs on the many types of skiing, but it gives helpful tips to the beginner on skiing clothes and the purchase of skis. Several chapters on the history of skiing and the vital part skiing played during the war make fascinating reading.

If your hobby is music appreciation you will probably be interested in seeing "At Home with Music" by Sigmund Spaeth. It includes discussions of harmony, rhythm, melody, short biographies of composers, and lists of recordings for enjoyable listening.

Do you like to draw and paint? If so, "Water Color Painting" by Adolph Dehn, and "How to Draw Portraits" by Charles Wood, may give you some new ideas as to technique and lead you to enjoy your hobby more.

As you who like to camp sit dreaming of your next summer's vacation, now is the time to plan the new cabin you've been wishing for the past few years. Conrad Meinecke's book, "Your Cabin in the Woods," will be of great help to you in deciding what kind of a cabin you should build, the best kind of land to build it on, and what to furnish it with after it's built. Tips on outdoor cooking, nature study and a variety of other things will make your 1946 vacation the best ever.

N. S. Joint Study Group To Present Author

The February meeting of the North Shore Joint Study group promises to be the most provocative of the current season. Saul D. Alinsky, author of the "Reveille for Radicals" (publisher University of Chicago Press) will consider the significance of the present struggle in our social and economic structure as implied in the Fair Employment Practices commission bill now on the floor of the Senate.

Mr. Alinsky received both his undergraduate and graduate training at the University of Chicago in the general field of the social sciences with especial emphasis in criminology. One of his earliest efforts was on a project concerning pre-delinquent and delinquent boys under the auspices of the Institute for Juvenile Research. Later, for several years at the Joliet penitentiary, he was one of a committee consisting of himself as criminologist, another as psychologist, another as psychiatrist and others in allied fields whose purpose was classifying prisoners and determining the destination, or institution, best suited to receive and rehabilitate the individual offender.

Ultimately, Mr. Alinsky assumed the task of setting up the Back of the Yards council, the first People's Organization in America. He is now the executive director of Industrial Areas, Inc., and is directing the establishment of such People's Organizations in industrial areas throughout the country. Briefly summarized the work consists of a scientific survey of the community's needs—social, economic and non-political. The evolution from blueprint to reality, Mr. Alinsky contends, must progress from and for the people—all the people of the community without regard to origin, race, religion, color or economic interests, or political preferences—all the people looking toward a like objective—the general welfare. "General Welfare" is a phrase employed by our founding fathers when writing our Constitution.

In his book, Mr. Alinsky not only indicated in pointed word and pungent phrase what needs correction in our unstable democracy, but specifies the methods by which that democracy may become a genuine democracy—of, by and for all the people. By way of comment on the timeliness of the book it is reported that all book shops were sold out the first day. It is now in its second printing.

Reviewing Mr. Alinsky's specialized training and his specific experiences it is the consensus of the steering committee of the North Shore Study group that his approach and development of such a topic as the Fair Employment Practices commission bill will be thought-provoking and a stimulus to action.

The following officers were nominated, and the election will take place at the next meeting of the group on Feb. 12, at the AFL hall.

To the office of post commander the following were nominated: Dr. B. J. Pecaro, Chester A. McMullen, R. C. Sherman Jr., William Schreyer and Charles L. Whyte Jr. For first vice commander, William Schreyer, Lester L. For post adjutant, Clayton Koskinen, Cliff Needham, Charles Noll and Lester L. Collins. Finance officer, Thomas Pillifant, Ralph Richardson and Fay Snell. Provost marshal, Oliver Bennett, Richard Kaski, George O'Flaherty, Albert Klein, Ralph Gartley and James Hall.

The Lake County Amvets was started by a group of veterans of this war in Waukegan, about seven weeks ago. Since that time, the group has grown to a membership of some 300. The members are from all over the county, and the Amvets are seeking to hear from veterans of this war who haven't received any information on this organization. Anyone desiring information is asked to write to the secretary, 221 Washington St., Waukegan, Ill., and an application blank with full details will be mailed to the veteran.

The Amvets meet every second and fourth Tuesday of each month at AFL hall, 217 W. Washington, Waukegan.

WOMAN'S CLUB—

Andre learned to speak perfect French and German. They returned to Oak Park in 1941.

Mr. William Whitaker, who will play Andre's accompaniment, is himself an accomplished musician, having done outstanding work as pianist and composer.

Tea will be served in the Club lounge following the program. Hostesses for the afternoon will be: Mesdames Robert M. Beckler, Herman Black, John N. Brigham and Albert D. Brush.

Mrs. James P. Moore, art chairman, has arranged for an exhibit of paintings to grace the walls of the club auditorium during the month of February. These paintings are the work of Mrs. Josephine Compton Pearson, 1053 Deerfield road, Deerfield. Mrs. Pearson studied at the St. Louis School of Fine Arts, and following the completion of her studies did commercial art work. For the past several years she has specialized in portrait painting, and has decorated playrooms, powder rooms and children's rooms with appropriate murals. Of particular interest in the Highland Park collection is the family portrait of herself and her two children, Catherine and Paul.

Mrs. Harry G. Pertz, chairman of the club's victory committee, has reported that their efforts to assist the local YWCA in the collection of wearing apparel for Holland proved a real success. This special effort was made just before Christmas, and was known to club members as their "Dutch Treat" for the bereft people of the gallant little country which suffered so terribly and so needlessly at the hands of the Nazis. More than 1,000 garments were accumulated, which represented some of almost every type of wearing apparel for women and children. Other donations included the desperately needed sewing materials: yard goods, buttons, pins, safety pins, needles, thread, darning cotton, scissors, etc., and many comforts the Dutch have not known for some time, such as soap, concentrated foods, handkerchiefs, towels, sheets, pillow cases and blankets. These articles were shipped by the YWCA to a contact point established by them, so it is to be hoped that the articles collected proved to be a real Christmas "Dutch treat."

Mr. Button came to Chicago in 1914 to establish a Chicago branch of the famous House of Ackermann in London, England, known in Chicago as the Arthur Ackermann & Son, Inc. Since 1924 he has been the vice-president of the Ackermann galleries in America. The other American branch is in New York.

The House of Ackermann has a picturesque history and carries on a great tradition. It was established in London in the latter part of the 18th Century, in the period of Dr. Johnson, Sir Josiah Reynolds, and David Garrick, and has carried on as dealers in paintings, prints, fine furniture, and objects of art through eight successive reigns—from the days of the American War of Independence and the French Revolution to the present day. In 1941, the gallery in London was temporarily closed while seeking new quarters; for their building was completely demolished during the Battle of Britain.

To quote from Mr. Button's letter to Mrs. Osborn: "The subject of the talk, 'Shades of the Past,' also has its early connection with Ackermann's as they were part of our various interests in the very early days, and in the 18th and early 19th century our place was adjacent to two or three of the fashionable profligates of the time—Mrs. Beetham, Miers, and later Miers & Field. Many of the important patrons of that time, immortalized in silhouette by these artists, were our patrons also, so this makes an interesting connecting link."

Jacob M. Krueger, 67, Succumbs to Illness

On Sunday evening Jacob M. Krueger, former Park board employee and veteran of the Spanish-American war, succumbed to a long illness at his home, 517 McDaniels, at the age of 67. He had been a life-long resident of Highland Park.

Surviving are his widow, Emma; three daughters, Mrs. Margaret Troy of Highland Park, Mrs. Joseph Seyl of Lake Forest and Mrs. Richard Schuetz of Racine, Wis.; three sons, James of Highland Park; Carl of Detroit, and Walter, of the U.S. army, now stationed in California; and eight grandchildren.
