"The Price of Liberty" Rabbi Shulman's Topic

Friday evening, at the North Shore Congregation Israel, Glencoe, Rabbi Charles E. Shulman will speak on "The Price of Liberty." The ancient Jewish festival of Passover is a perennial reminder of the fact that liberty is an expensive commodity. It cannot be had without great struggle and sacrifice. The sermon of the week indicates the manner in which the Jewish people have had to maintain their integrity throughout the ages and points to the sacrifices demanded of all peoples in our particular day if we are to have a free world and a peaceful one.

Visitors are invited to attend these services every Friday night at the Temple at Lincoln and Vernon avenues in Glencoe.

Public Service Company Receives Award

"For meritorious service and outstanding performance rendered beyond normal responsibility during World War II," Rear Admiral H. G. Taylor has awarded navy citation to the employees of Public Service Company of Northern Illinois. Britton I. Budd is president of the company.
 "The award was made," Admiral Taylor said, "in recognition of the speed and efficiency with which the company met all wartime demands for electricity and gas, of the service beyond normal responsibility it supplied to the naval installations and war production industries, and of its leadership in the conservation of manpower, fuel, and critical materials, and the promotion of war bond sales and recruiting."

Precautions Advised In Kite Flying

Spring is here and with it kite flying season, that splendid all around sport, from the moment of planning construction to the time the kite is pulled down from its flight to be put away for another day. In these modern days kite flying also has its dangers, warned Judge John P. McGoorty, acting chairman of the Chicago Recreation commission, today.

Addressing himself to all teachers and parents, Judge McGoorty said that because these dangers were not so wide-spread in the past that parents too often do not warn their youngsters concerning them. He asked that all children be cautioned to observe the following safety rules:

Never fly a kite in the streets that may be used for traffic.
 Do not cross highways or streets while flying a kite.

Use only cotton cord for kite string. Remember that wet cotton cord is a conductor of electricity.

Never use wire or metal tinsel for kite string.
 Don't use a kite with metal ribs.

Don't fly a kite near power, trolley or telephone wires, transmission towers, or over radio aerials.

Don't let your kite get away from you. Serious injury to yourself and extensive damage to property may follow.

Never attempt to climb poles to release a kite entangled in wires or try to release it by throwing stones at it. Better to lose a kite than to risk a broken leg, damage to nearby property, or even your own life.

The World's Headache — Atomic Energy

Shall we continue to make atomic bombs? Shall we try to develop the peace-time applications of atomic energy? Shall we allow private industry to own the raw materials? Shall there be free exchange of scientific ideas or shall government control them?

These questions are hanging fire while the United States still makes bombs, atomic scientists are limited in what they say, and "federal atomic cities" of 15 to 50,000 people, are still under direct military control.

The atom bomb is the cheapest method of mass destruction yet invented. Scientists hold out no hope of an effective defense against it.

Several scientists say emphatically, that if it should be necessary to outlaw industrial use in order to assure the outlawing of military use, they would unhesitatingly abandon industrial development with all its possible benefits. Others argue that industrial applications should be developed at the earliest possible moment.

The scientists and most everyone "in the know" are unanimous in their opinion that effective international control is necessary to prevent a disastrous atomic armaments race.

It is believed by many that if a policy of free exchange of scientists and scientific information were established, part of the battle for international control would be won, since it would be very difficult to conceal the existence of work in this field from other scientists.

The only secret we now possess over other nations is that of the industrial process by which we manufacture atomic bombs.

Two bills are now being formulated in the Senate for domestic control — S. 1717, the McMahon Bill and S. 1557, the Ball Bill. The main differences are (1) In the form of control. The McMahon bill sets up a 5 man commission, all civilians, appointed by the president. The Ball bill sets up a 9 man commission, 5 cabinet members, 4 part time public members, 2 of which could be military; (2) Government is the producer of atomic energy while allowing private enterprise ownership of source material, in the McMahon bill, private ownership of fissionable materials is allowed in the Ball bill, and the commission must authorize production or allocation of source material.

Both provide free exchange of basic scientific information. The McMahon bill emphasizes peacetime uses, and provides that military research shall not be conducted if contrary to international agreement. It also provides that the commission have custody of all weapons, and that they be produced only with the approval of the president.

Internationally, the United States, Britain and Russia have reached an agreement calling for an Atomic Energy commission. This commission is directed to make specific proposals: (a) For extending between all nations the exchange of basic scientific information for peaceful ends, (b) For controlling atomic energy to the extent necessary to ensure its use only for peaceful purposes, (c) For effective safeguards by way of inspection and other means to protect complying states against the hazards of violations and evasions. The commission, itself, will be made up of one representative from each state which has a seat on the Security council, and Canada when that state is not a member of the Security council.

The basic problem remains that of improving international relations to the point that wars are no longer possible; otherwise an attempt to control atomic weapons will be futile. Therefore, while it is necessary for citizens to give careful attention to the development of an atomic energy policy, it is equally necessary that we be aware that this is only part of the total picture. We must work with all our energy to insure the success of the United Nations in accomplishing its total purpose.
