★ ★
Other Covering . . .
 Speaking of covering—Did you ever wonder why our forefathers built covered bridges? A Koppers advertisement states that the "shed" over such bridges cut off most of the moisture from the trusses, decking, and stringers. Today, coal tar creosote or chemical salts poison the food supply of the fungi. Hence, less rotting occurs.

★ ★
Gas Pipes, Too . . .
 The Gas industry uses a chemical preparation to cover underground gas mains. Many years additional pipe life is obtained in this manner.

★ ★
Safety First . . .
 Dry ice packed with ice cream or frozen foods is at 100 degrees below zero and should be dumped at once into the sink or garbage can where it will evaporate safely away from children. Never use it to chill drinking water. Fragments if swallowed will cause grave injury to the stomach.
