First Social Event of Infant Welfare Group Friday Night, May 3

Members of all three groups comprising the Highland Park-Ravinia Infant Welfare center have been asked with their husbands to the supper. The committee in charge, however, was comprised of new members from the junior group.

Know Your High School!

Unusual Honor Bestowed on Our High School Principal

Mr. A. E. Wolters, principal of Highland Park high school, was one of six outstanding secondary school principals who were invited to attend a meeting in Chicago on April 11, 12 and 13 to discuss problems of educating veterans.

This meeting was called by the National Education association and invitations were extended to 200 representative leaders in higher education from all over the United States. In addition to this number, Mr. Paul Elicker of the National Association of Secondary School Principals, was directed by the N.E.A. to recommend six leaders among secondary school men to meet with this group. Mr. Raymond D. Meade of Bloom Township high school, Mr. E. R. Siefert of Proviso Township high school, Mr. Paul A. Young, director of guidance and research of the Evanston public schools and Mr. Jas. E. Blue of West high school, Rockford, Ill., were the other secondary school men who attended.

The problems studied were many and varied. Mr. Wolters was asked to sit in with the conference on Admission and Credits. This group considered such questions as, What are the limits of enrollment within which educational opportunities can best be provided? What are wise bases of selection of students for colleges and universities? What are the better policies in the evaluation of military experience? How shall state supported institutions cope with applications from non-resident students? How shall colleges and universities meet the situation without lowering standards?

Another section of the conference studied the problems of providing adequate facilities, including revising hours, and schedules, use of outside institutions such as high schools and libraries off campus, the possibility of cooperative arrangements between institutions. Related problems included consideration of the use of ordnance plants, army posts, factories, etc., extension and correspondence courses, community programs for adult education, and extending high schools through the 14th year.

One group considered problems of guidance and administration, such as housing, part time employment of veterans, provisions for the welfare of veterans' families, study of the need and facilities for guidance.

The financial and business administration problems were discussed by others, in order to discover how best to insure adequate education for veterans. This included cooperation between the Veterans Administration and our schools to eliminate waste motion and confusion, how to meet increased financial responsibilities, how much is temporary and how much permanent, need.

The problems of procuring adequate staff and personnel was another pressing question up for consideration, with its many related problems, such as standards, housing, etc.

Last but surely not least, the matters of curriculum, such as a proper balance between general and civil education and vocational training — how to adjust methods and curriculum to the experience and maturity of the veteran, how to cooperate with secondary schools to meet the needs of the veteran and how to use the newest techniques in making the curriculum completely effective, were thoroughly discussed.

The conclusions reached will be used to coordinate the efforts of all the institutions of higher learning as well as that of government agencies with the colleges and universities and should be of inestimable value in re-evaluating our facilities and putting them to the most complete and effective use, not only for our veterans but for all who seek higher education.

How Smart Is Hubba Hubba?

"Hubba, hubba," an exclamation commonly used to express delighted appreciation, is quite the proper moniker for a pet with pink eyes and long silky ears. At least that is the considered opinion of a young lady named Janis, who lives at 1348 Broadview.

Yet the one name appeared, somehow, inadequate, and the pet's cottony contour suggested a second... and here is the sum total: Hubba Hubba Marshmallow Zabel.

Janis' devotion to her bunny moved her to even greater lengths. She has written a poem, excerpts of which appear on page 3 in Deeps and Shallows.

Now Hubba Hubba is as bright as bunnies come, but the supreme test of rabbit intelligence remains to be proved. The moot question is: Can he/she multiply?
