

Deep and Shallows

Tree in Autumn

The staunch old tree stands silent and aloof,
Its flaming splendor stripped from barren boughs
A patriarch, hands folded on his cane,
Reliving precious memories of the past.

—H.L.

Fairy Air Planes

The leaves are fairy airplanes
Coasting on the breeze,
Their destination is the ground...
They "take off" from the trees.

And lest the elfin pilots
Crash and harm their little selves,
We give "Good luck," and hail them:
"Happy landing, little elves."

—DEEDEE.

The Benefits of Baffin-Land

Of course you've heard of Baffin Bay,
And Baffin Island, up that way;

Inhabited, as well you know,
By the husky, hardy Eskimo.

And if you're one who seeks the sun
Until you're slightly overdone,

Consider, please, the comforts and
The benefits of Baffin-Land.

Theirs is no housing problem—lo,
They build their homes with blocks of snow.

The Eskimolets have no school—
There are no strikes on precious fuel;

A lamp of oil supplies the light,
And keeps them cozy, day and night;

For through those blocks of hardened snow
No breeze is ever known to blow.

They have four months of sun and light,
And, likewise, four of winter night;

The balance of the year is seen
As four more months of in-between.

No calendar to tell the day . . .
But what is time worth, anyway?

When some occasion brings them out
To wander, and to scout about,

Kind Nature lights their pathway,
and
Provides a winter wonderland.

The rare aurora borealis
Turns all outdoors into a palace.

They never have to ration meat—
There always is enough to eat;

The deer, the caribou, the bear,
Supply them food, and clothes to wear;

If seafood is their idle wish,
They just go out and hook a fish.

Also, and you may think this funny—
They have no earthly use for money;

Although, just for the jingle, many
Like the clink of the copper penny.

I think I'll pack my satchel and Go seek my luck in Baffin-Land.

—R.B.O.

Kappa Delta Celebrate Founders Day

Founders Day of Kappa Delta, national sorority, will be celebrated by all Chicagoland alumnae of the sorority at an anniversary tea at the chapter house on Northwestern university campus in Evanston, Sunday, Oct. 27, from 3:30 to 5:30 o'clock. The tea has been planned and arranged by the Chicago executive council, comprised of city and suburban alumnae groups of the sorority.

Musical numbers will be furnished by Marjorie Howard Morgan and readings by Mrs. Donald G. Kempf. The program will also include skits based on recent rushing experiences and group singing by the active members of the Northwestern chapter.

The Chicago executive council is already making plans for its traditional Christmas party, given for active members of nearby colleges and universities, home for the holidays.

Live Dutch Dolls to Attend Tea for Toys

Two blonde, rosy-cheeked Dutch dolls will greet those who attend the Infant Welfare Tea for Toys Monday afternoon, Oct. 28, from 2 to 4, at the home of Mrs. E. N. Johnson, 2229 Lakeside place. The date, Monday, Oct. 28, was emphasized because of an incorrect date published last week.

The dolls, portrayed by Marcia Harrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George D. Harrison, and Bonnie Johnson, daughter of the E. N. Johnsons, will act as pages thruout the afternoon.

The Dutch toy motif will be followed through in the table decorations, according to Mrs. Ralph Treischmann, who is in charge of flower arrangements for the tea.

Approximately 250 invitations have been sent out to members of all three groups in Highland Park-Ravinia Infant Welfare center as well to members of the Thrift shop board. Each of these persons in turn will be permitted to bring a toy to be donated to the Thrift shop for pre-Christmas sale.

A committee headed by Mrs. Henry H. Hixson Jr. has dressed a number of dolls in fresh hand-made clothing, and these will make an attractive focal point in what is expected to be a roomful of assorted toys and games.

Proceeds from the Thrift shop benefit several philanthropic organizations besides the Infant Welfare society.

Northwestern Settlement and Arden Shore are two regular beneficiaries; others are the hospital auxiliary, Red Cross and various other causes.

"I was in the Army when I picked this job!"

"A lot of my Army buddies were telephone people before the war. They talked a lot about the company—even showed me some of the letters they got from the gang back home."

"When they told me about their work, about the pay and the benefits, I decided that telephone work was a 'good deal.' So, when I got home, I went to see the Illinois Bell people and —well, here I am! It's a good place to work."

So far, of the 2,500 Illinois Bell men who have been honorably discharged from the service, 98 per cent have rejoined us. All are receiving the automatic salary increases accumulated while on military leave. We're glad they're back—and glad they consider this a good place to work.
