Patriotic Conference to Be Held in Chicago

Mrs. Edwin Gilroy, president of the Highland Park unit of the American Legion auxiliary, will join representatives of the over 700 units in Illinois at the annual patriotic conference, sponsored by the Illinois department of the American Legion auxiliary. An all-day meeting will be held at the Palmer House, Chicago, beginning at 9:30 am on March 24. Other representatives from Highland Park will be Mesdames Joseph Riddle, Leslie McCaffrey, Philip Cole and Henry Eitner.

Each department conference held throughout the United States is patterned after the National Patriotic conference held recently in Washington, D. C., which was sponsored by over 30 patriotic women's organizations and attended by Illinois officers of the auxiliary.

The Chicago conference will be addressed by Army and Navy officers, political and civic figures, and leaders of the Legion and auxiliary.

A conference luncheon will be held in the Grand Ball room of the Palmer House at noon, when the representatives will be addressed by Mrs. Norman L. Sheehy of Rockford, national vice-president of the auxiliary, and Mr. Mark Love, noted radio artist and opera star, as well as other nationally known speakers.

Following the patriotic conference the board of directors of the Illinois department will convene at 8 pm and continue the following day, March 25.

"Rid Premises of Rubbish," Charges Fire Chief Hennig

Declaring that rubbish and refuse constitute one of the greatest fire threats to Highland Park, Fire Chief Hennig called upon all local residents to aid in the drive to lessen fire losses by ridding their properties of old papers, rags and useless articles.

"According to the National Fire Protection association," Chief Hennig declares, "ninety per cent of all home fires could be prevented by cleaning out rubbish and unnecessary combustible materials, and by correcting other obvious fire hazards."

Chief Hennig issued the following five point fire control plan for Highland Park householders:

1. Remove all rubbish and oily rags, which may ignite spontaneously. Burn them or store them in closed metal containers.
2. Examine heating systems for cracks, soot clogging and defects and see that no combustible materials are exposed to heat.
3. Examine wood shingle on the roof. If old, replace with fire retardant roofing.
4. Keep ashes in metal containers.
5. Replace frayed electric cords and have defective electrical equipment replaced or repaired by a competent electrician. "Institute a regular system of rubbish removal from your property this spring," advised the chief. He concluded, "Remember, clean property seldom burns."

PUBLIC LIBRARY

"Tick-Tock—Time for the Story Hour." Children's Department "Tick-tock," says the old Wonder Clock in Time's garret, "it is Saturday morning; it is 10:30, time for the Story Hour in the Library." And while the old clock ticks on, eager children gather to listen to the stories which are told every Saturday morning in the Library auditorium.

"How old is story telling?" you ask, — "as old as Time's Grandmother," is the answer; "but," you ask again, "how old is Time's Grandmother?" To get the answer to that, Howard Pyle says, "you will have to climb to the top of the church steeple, and ask the wind as he sits upon the weathercock, humming the tune of the Over-yonder song to himself."

Perhaps it began as a simple chant, in first person, relating something of the day's doings. Slowly, however, it developed into an art, with the story teller as an important person, preserving the history of a tribe, its wars, and its life in peace.

During the Middle Ages, the story teller became the bringer of news, the historian as well as the poet. He related the events and the happenings of the time, and in his own poetic way he wove into his tales customs, traditions and religious beliefs. Thus he laid the foundations for culture and literature of the nations and preserved and kept alive the folkart of a people.

After the invention of the printing, when story tellers were no longer necessary for the adults, storytelling continued in the home, for children. A great deal of culture was handed down this way, in our own country. For even a hundred years ago, there was many an American family who owned

The answer to a stenographer's prayer — an "errorless" electric typewriter — has been patented. Unlike standard typewriters, it works on the principle of a linotype, setting up an entire line which is visible above the keyboard. If there is an error, the operator presses a button and eliminates the mistyped character.

Not all new devices are satisfactory. For instance, there have appeared since the war a hundred new makes of Gas Conversion Burners. For your protection, please feel free to call us about any burner you are considering.

not a book for a child, but there was always an old grandmother or a member of the family who recalled the stories of long ago, may they have been the old Bible stories, folktales from Europe or Indian myths and legends, handed down from the early settlers, and they were told again and again on dark, stormy winter nights around a warm, friendly fire.

With the modern times came story telling in the public libraries, and in the schools as a vital part of the school curriculum, with a wealth of printed material at our disposal, if we only have the imagination and the love to make use of it.

So, while the old Wonder Clock ticks on, come the tales in the library, Saturday mornings; folktales and fairy tales of long ago, stories of science and history, poetry, old and new, the best we can find in literature.

"Tick-tock," says the old Wonder clock, "it is time for story telling."

WILLIAM FLEISCHMANN ABOARD USS LEYTE

William Fleischmann, aviation machinist's mate, third class, son of Mrs. Marie Fleischmann of Ridge avenue, is serving aboard the aircraft carrier USS Leyte, which is part of the Second Task fleet, now on Atlantic fleet maneuvers. These maneuvers took place en route to and in the Caribbean sea area.

The Leyte, an Essex class carrier which was commissioned on April 11, 1946, was named for the famous Battle of Leyte Gulf, fought during the Philippine liberation campaign.
