

1947 All America Vegetable Selections

By the Master Gardener "Bronze Beauty Lettuce" "Ranger Snapbean" "Erie Sweetcorn" — these are the All-American vegetable selections for 1947.

Appropriately enough, a bronze medal went to "Bronze Beauty Lettuce." Of the oak leaf type, this lettuce has an exceptional tolerance of heat and sun.

The "Ranger Snapbean" also received a bronze medal as an entirely new variety, distinguished by its unusual habit of growth, disease resistance and its high yield.

Honorable mention went to "Erie Sweetcorn" — a yellow-kernelled hybrid. The ears have 12 to 14 rows of grains and are 9 inches in length.

To get maximum results with the least effort and expense with these new varieties and all your other vegetables include complete plant food in your growing program.

Here is the feeding program that I have found efficient and economical for the vegetable garden.

Annual Vegetables — Make the initial application of complete plant food when the soil has been spaded and pulverized in readiness for seed planting.

Where vegetables are to be planted in rows, use two pounds of plantfood for each fifty feet of row.

When transplanting seeding plants of the long growing crops, such as tomatoes, cabbage, peppers, etc., mix a level tablespoonful of plant food thoroughly with the soil in the bottom of the hole.

For crops grown in hills, such as cucumbers and melons, mix a level tablespoonful of plant food thoroughly with the soil in the bottom of the hill and cover with one inch of soil before setting out the plants.

Perennial Vegetables — In addition to an initial feeding in early spring, asparagus and rhubarb should be fed when the last cutting is made.

Mother-Son Banquet Highlight Activity at Bethany Church

One of the highlights of the year at Bethany church will be the mother-son banquet, to be held on Friday evening, May 16, in the church parlors at Laurel and McGovern. Members and friends will want to be among those who sit down to a bountiful chicken dinner at 6:30 pm.

"Along the Mother-Son Trail" will be the theme of the evening. The program committee, consisting of Miss Audrey Wessling, Mrs. L. Laubenstein and Norman Christman, is planning an evening that mothers and sons will remember for a long time.

"Sons" will be shared with mothers who desire to "adopt" them for the evening. Each mother is urged to invite a "son" to be present.

The novel part of the affair is that the fathers will serve the dinner.

Put Yourself in His Place

Josephus Daniehl, statesman and journalist, says: These words, the title of one of Charles Reade's novels, have remained in my memory for more than half a century. The story tells of an English village, when workers believed the introduction of labor-saving machines meant taking bread out of the mouths of their wives and children. Living in this community was Dr. Amboyne. He was a wise physician, who tended alike to mill owner and mill worker, to the mind as well as the body. And whenever he found one man denouncing another, he always asked the same question: "What would you do if you were in his place?"

Dr. Amboyne's example has influenced me from youth to age. I have tried — with many lapses — to follow it in all association with my fellows. "Put Yourself in His Place," as practiced by the doctor, is, in effect, to live the Golden Rule. It seems to me, as one who has lived a long time, that it was never more needed than now.
