ROTC Inspection

by Major L. B. Redd, assistant professor of military science and tactics at the University of Minnesota.

At noon we dined with Capt. Norrfray and Major E. S. Mathes in the ROTC dining room. A delicious dinner of vegetable soup, liver and onions, scalloped potatoes, cauliflower, stewed tomatoes, rolls, cake and coffee was served by Master Sergeant Edward Mortimer, instructor and head cook. Thirty student cooks are being schooled here. Sgt. Muller, who was not on duty at the time, is co-instructor and head cook with Sgt. Mortimer. Major Mathes, who considers his title of mess officer his most important, is also assistant supply officer and safety officer.

Other officers whom we met and who were most hospitable were Col. Ericson, ROTC commanding officer; Col. John Alfrey, commander in charge of activities; Major A. F. Brandstatter, of the department of police administration of Michigan State college, a company platoon commander; Major Robert H. Scott, assistant plans and training officer; Lt. Col. James H. Fish, head of military police; Major Eugene Smith, military organization of anti-aircraft coast artillery corps; Major John P. Howard, military police ROTC company officer, and Lt. Col. Hagerty, commanding officer of "A" company of 728th Unit Police battalion.

Athletic programs of jiu-jitsu, ball games, etc., comprised the afternoon's program.

James Corey, Harold N. Elliott, and Joseph Knight, ROTC students, are instructing in jiu-jitsu. They spent time during the war training men in "judo," in individual protection and personal encounters. They helped train marines, marine raiders and army commandoes.

Also an ROTC student is Paul J. Picard, 6 ft. 6 in. son of Paul Picard and nephew of Auguste Picard, world famous stratosphere balloonists.

Before departure, Col. Ericson explained to what extent the ROTC has gone to cause the least disturbance to Highland Park and Highwood residents by anti-aircraft fire.

At a great sacrifice to their training schedule, they have planned to concentrate all anti-aircraft firing practice from July 21 to July 25. During those days, areas of Lake Michigan will be patrolled for the protection of any who may be on the water.

In conclusion, may we add that from what the "Highland Park Press" observed, there could be no finer military training for a young man than that offered by the ROTC.

Men Over Forty Club

Business promises to be good for some time, reports T. H. Gilmore, president of the Men Over Forty club, 8 S. Dearborn, Chicago. There is a demand for technical men, in marked contrast to conditions existing prior to the war, when it was almost impossible for engineers over 40 to find positions. Possibly this is due to the determination to find ways to lower costs. Many employers find older men a wholesome restraint on more youthful enthusiasm.

Membership to the club is limited to business executives in the $4000-a-year or over bracket, with backgrounds of accomplishment. No fees are charged, and the club is self-managed. Its function is to provide a link between positions and older men who are qualified to fill them. A number of good openings are listed at the present time.

Vet Enrollments Sharply Decrease

Veteran enrollments in schools and colleges fell off sharply during May, marking the first time in two years that the steady increase in the number of World War II veterans attending college under the G. I. Bill of Rights was checked.

Many of the veterans terminating their training for the summer months are expected to resume their studies during the fall and winter semester when VA anticipates an enrollment peak of more than 2,000,000 men and women in institutional training.
