Yacht Club Buys

(Continued from page 1) mittee's rescue boat and its launching apparatus fell into disrepair during the war," he said. "That boat, though larger, was tricky and dangerous to launch in a seaway. We hope that the new landing boat will prove more reliable, though less glamorous. We can't maintain a continuous patrol of the waterfront, nor undertake trips more than a few miles away, but we will try to help anyone in distress here when our members are on hand."

Citing the need for a Coast Guard Station and a harbor in this area, Dr. Ringland stressed the fact that at present four Coastguardsmen at Wilmette, where were formerly ten men were stationed, and a similar station at Kenosha, are the nearest water protection to our lakeside community of fifteen thousand population.

Other proposals being studied for the club's safety drive include seamanship classes, equipment of boats with lifejackets and other safeguards, provision of a storm warning siren, and adoption of a new "rightable" boat design for future units of the Club's fleet. Members of the yacht club's safety committee planning this campaign, in addition to the chairman, are Benno Nell, former deep-sea ship captain, Andy Kaiser, and Malcolm Vail, noted Great Lakes yachtsman, all Highland Park residents.

CHARLES LICHWALT TAKES AUSTRIAN BRIDE

Miss Joan Eidljorg, of Linz, Austria, became the bride of Charles Fred Lichtwalt on Monday, July 8, at 7:30 o'clock in the evening, at the Redeemer Evangelical Lutheran Church, the Rev. H. K. Platzer reading the service. The bride, who met her husband, while he was stationed in Austria with the army, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Eidljorg of Linz. Mr. Lichtwalt is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lichtwalt Sr., of 1403 West street. A former sergeant, he served two years overseas with the Counter Intelligence Corps. He received his release from the army four months ago.

The bride, who flew to the United States a month ago, was gowned in a dress of french lace, which she brought with her from Austria. The long train on her dress was carried by little Nancy Gordon, dressed in white, who acted as train bearer. The bride's veil was very long and her bouquet was of Easter lilies. Mr. Lichtwalt gave his daughter-in-law in marriage.

Mrs. Tony Cimogio of Painesville, Ohio, who came to this country from Austria three months ago to be married, attended the bride as matron of honor. Her dress was turquoise and she carried white carnations.

Sgt. Charles Gordon, uncle of the bridegroom, served as best man.

The bridegroom's mother wore a white print dress and her corsage was of white carnations.

A reception in the home of the bridegroom's parents followed the ceremony.

Mr. Lichtwalt and his bride returned on Sunday from a week's honeymoon in Ohio. They will reside with his parents.

LIBRARY NOTES

Many new and interesting books have been added to the Highland Park Library's already fine collection during the past several weeks, and they are now on the shelves awaiting your inspection. Included among the recent additions are both fiction and non-fiction, the latter dealing with a myriad of subjects. Sports, gardening, religion, psychology, biography, all are here.

The long-awaited and excellent book by John Gunther, "Inside U. S. A." is among the new arrivals. The fourth in his "Inside" series - "Inside Europe," "Asia" and "Latin America" having preceded this most recent volume - "Inside U.S.A." is a study of democracy in action, an exploration of the many and complex forces at work in our country today. In writing "Inside U.S.A." Mr. Gunther has made a state by state analysis of current trends, issues and personalities - in short, he has presented America to the Americans.

In a different vein, but just as valuable is "The Readers-Shakespeare" in which the author, Babette Deutsch, tells the stories of sixteen of the great Englishman's most popular plays, including "King Lear," "Romeo and Juliet" and "Hamlet." This is a book for all Shakespeare lovers as well as those who find him too stiff and stilted in the original, but who, nevertheless, enjoy the stories of his plays.

In the fiction department is G. B. Stern's latest book, "The Reasonable Shores." It is the story of a large family with the attention centered on one girl, Jessamy, who is too sensitive and vulnerable for the world in which she finds herself. Told as only Miss Stern can tell it, the story finally takes Jessamy from her youthful disillusion to the "reasonable shores" of maturity.

For you readers who are interested in travel "Kakidoneopic Quebec" by Amy Oakley is a "must" on your summer reading list. Cleverly illustrated by the author's husband, Thornton Oakley, the book is full of delightful descriptions and historical and legendary facts about the Canadian province where the people still follow the old traditions and speak the language of France. Also included are up-to-the-minute details on roads and inns for the tourist who is planning to visit Quebec.

Roderick L. Haig-Brown's "A River Never Sleeps" is an outdoor book for all who love fishing. Mr. Haig-Brown, who writes of fishing not just as a sport, but an art, tells of the legends and history of the activity as well as of the companions with whom he has fished. This is a book that makes you like your fellowman and want to join him in friendship besides the river.

These are just a few of the new books, and the others not mentioned by name are equally interesting and informative. To get a complete picture of our newest additions come in and look them over for yourself.
