Increase Interment Expense Allowance For War Dead

Next of kin of those overseas deceased of World War II who have decided to have the remains of their deceased returned to the United States for interment in a private cemetery are now allowed a sum not to exceed $75 instead of of the original allowance of $50 to defray actual burial expenses, Lt. Colonel Carroll J. Grinnell, Chief of the Chicago Distribution Center of the American Graves Registration Division, announced today.

This increase in interment expense allowance, according to the same War Department Order, will also be applicable for the next of kin of all Armed Forces personnel who die on or after October 1, 1947.

Costs or expenses over $75 must be paid for by the person who contracted for the services rendered.

Colonel Grinnell pointed out that the War Department questionnaire in which the next of kin make their decision as to the final disposition of their overseas deceased has been sent out only to one third of our nation's Gold Star families. Automatically four to six months prior to the actual evacuation of each of our overseas cemeteries all qualified next of kin will be contacted by the War Department. Their wishes will be complied with and no priority of return will be granted because of rank, race, creed or color.

Elm Place School Safety Patrol

In conjunction with the national drive for safety, Elm Place has again organized its safety patrol to help protect children on their way to and from school and to help educate children to proper conduct in crossing streets and riding bicycles. Statistics show there are more cars on the streets now than ever before and renewed emphasis is being placed on automobile safety. The first step in that direction was the selection of boys best qualified to act as safety patrol members. A "Knowledge Test on Safety" was given to all boys interested in serving on the patrol and those who ranked highest on the test were selected. Several meetings have been held to train these boys in proper safety procedures while on duty at street and railroad crossings.

The patrol is divided into two squads. One squad has morning patrol; the other squad has the afternoon patrol.

The two squads and their assignments are listed below. Motorists are asked to cooperate with these boys who are easily recognized by the white Sam Brown belts they wear.

LIBRARY NOTES

When choosing a book to read, do you prefer biography? Plays? Essays? Or do you like a good novel? Whatever your taste in reading may be, the Highland Park Library has a number of new books which should be of interest to you.

One of the most popular of the recent biographies, Robert Casey's "More Interesting People", is now on our shelves among the recent additions. A veteran newspaper man, Casey tells of the many interesting, and often amusing, experiences he has had in his work as a reporter. The life of a newspaper man is fascinating because one meets such interesting people, and it is these interesting people—celebrities who have been featured in his stories, individuals who some mere whim of fate has cast into the public limelight and his newspaper cohorts alike—who, along with his wonderful gift for story-telling, make the book what it is. Those of you who have read other books by Casey will not want to miss this one, and those of you who haven't will want to take this opportunity to get acquainted with him.

William Saroyan's latest play, "Jim Dandy", is also available to Library patrons now. The play, which bears the sub-title, "Fat Man in a Famine", is one which only Saroyan could write. The action takes place in—of all places—a transparent egg shell, inside of which are miserable and majestic ruins, representing immemorial and immediate reality. "The play happens", states the author himself, "as if everybody in it had survived pestilence, famine, ignorance, injustice, inhumanity, torture, crime and madness. In short, as if everybody in it were human. Prolonged suffering has given everybody in the play dignity, humor and simplicity. Everybody in the play is a miracle."

For those who prefer something a little more on the philosophical or scientific line the new book by Alfred North Whitehead, one of the twentieth century's most eminent mathematicians and philosophers, is bound to be of interest. "Essays in Science and Philosophy", as the book is called, contains many of its author's ideas on the meaning and future of learning his basic theories in the science of mathematics as well as a number of essays of a biographical nature. Unlike many philosophical and scientific writers, Whitehead does not present his subject matter in a dull pedantic style. Rather, a sparkling, somewhat ironic humor shines through his essays which are adorned by a brilliance of vivid expression.

Fiction readers will be glad to know that "So Dear to My Heart" by Sterling North has been added to our collection of recent novels. Indiana in the days of lamplight, gingham tablecloths, slat bonnets and copper-toed shoes is the setting for this novel whose story deals with Jeremiah Tarleton, a lonesome ten-year-old orphan, who is living with his Granny Kinkaid. An artist with her loom, Granny is seeking to tell the complicated and passionate story of Jeremiah's heritage and of her own bitterness against the Tarleton family by weaving a multi-colored counterpane of "story covers". "So Dear to My Heart" is a story of emotional depth and beauty, filled with the gaiety, songs, dances and color of the time and region of which the author writes. It has the same poignancy and nostalgia that characterized "The Yearling", yet it is a book which will be remembered and loved for its own characters and plot rather than for its similarity to some other story.

LINCOLN SCHOOL GARDEN SHOW

The Annual Garden Show was held at Lincoln School on Thursday, September 25th under the direction of Mrs. Clara Kuester Walton, General Science teacher. The entries included flowers, fruits and vegetables, arranged in artistic and humorous displays, as well as specimens in cultural groups, and were on display during the regular assembly period. On beautifully arranged tables, the entries were outstanding in many respects, especially the children's creative projects which showed a great deal of personal planning and real fun in the making. The cultural specimens were judged by Mr. Bruce Krasberg and Mr. George Dana of the Men's Garden Club, artistic arrangements by Mrs. Stanley Grace, Mrs. C. Vigo Nichols and Mrs. Arthur Baldauf. Many ribbons were awarded the outstanding arrangements, and honorable mention was given a score of others. The humorous displays were exceptionally worthy of note.

P. T. A. Carnival

Mrs. David Cox and her co-chairman, Mrs. Martin Granholm, and Mrs. Leonard Ross are busy with arrangements for the P. T. A. carnival to be held October 10th at 7:30 in the gymnasium. The evening proved so successful last year that the committee looks forward to an even larger crowd this year, and have enthusiastically increased the number of attractions for the evening, again including Bingo but with many more prizes, a horse racing game, movies, fascinating fortune teller, a wishing well, and many other games and booths to fill every minute of your time. Refreshments will also be sold. This marks a particularly "special" evening of fun that the entire family can enjoy together. Don't forget to save that evening, Friday, October 10th.
