The ILLINOIS & MICHIGAN CANAL 1848-1948

Read the tale of the old Illinois and Michigan Canal, now celebrating its hundredth birthday, in your Service Bulletin.

It's a story of the Canal's beginnings: about the 4th of July in 1836 when the first spadeful of dirt was turned at Canalport (Bridgeport) in Chicago; it tells of important events which preceded that eventful 4th and of some of the happenings in the twelve years that followed before the great waterway was finished. Illustrated by John McKee.
