Telephone tips

Suppose that right now you want to call some distant part of the United States. How long do you think it would take? If you'd say "two minutes," you'd be just about right! Two minutes is all it takes, on the average, to connect you to any telephone in the country, or give you a report on your call. Some calls go through even faster if placed correctly.

LIKE THIS

Say you want to call Philadelphia. First thing you do is ask the operator for "Long Distance." (From a dial telephone dial "0" for Operator.) Give the name of the called town first, then the telephone number and the name of the person you are calling. Like this:

"Philadelphia-Walnut 2-0100 (pause)-Mr. A. D. Jones." Placing your call this way means faster service since with your first word (the name of the city), the operator is "connecting" your line to the line of the city called.

If you merely want a certain number, say:

"PHILADELPHIA - WALNUT 2-0100"

This type of call costs less because you are willing to talk to anyone who answers.

If you don't know the telephone number, just give the Long Distance operator the town name, the name and address of the person, business or organization you are calling.

DON'T say, "I want to place a Long Distance call to . . ." DON'T give your own number to the operator until she asks for it.

FOR FASTER SERVICE

Following these simple suggestions will help speed through your calls. We're installing new switchboards and hundreds of new circuits to give wings to your words out of town. We're trying to make your service faster, more dependable, always friendly.
