The Rev. Gleason, assisted by the Rev. Douaire and the Rev. Martini, heard the exchange of nuptial vows.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was gowned in white satin, seed pearl trimmed, and made with a very long train. Her fingertip veil fell from a white pill box hat. She carried a prayer book to which one white orchid was attached. Baby white chrysanthemums were attached to the ribbon marker.

Maid of honor, Miss Nancy Cantagallo, cousin of the bride, wore a raisin colored satin gown. The old fashioned bouquet she carried was of green carnations. The bridesmaids, Miss Margaret Innocenzi, sister of the bride, Miss Mary Camalo, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Patricia Alviani, cousin of the bride, were gowned alike in forest green satin. Their old fashioned bouquets were of raisin colored carnations.

The bride's mother chose a brown dress with beaded bodice for the wedding ceremony, and a seed pearl trimmed blue dress for the reception.

A breakfast at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony. A dinner for 75 guests was held at the Commodore at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon. About 800 attended the reception held at the Highwood Community Center at 8 p.m. Dolls, gowned exactly as the bridal party, formed the wedding in miniature for the table centerpiece and the cakes were made in the form of old fashioned bouquets. The wedding cake was six feet high.
