And So This Is Florida And We Recommend The Ponte Vedra Club

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, FLORIDA:—
At last!
Florida . . .

A fabulous land where the weather is just about always warm . . . at least it was this year . . . A land that boasts about its oranges and its grapefruits—yet we've not tasted any of either here that compares with those sold at Highland Park's fine markets . . .

RECOMMENDS . . .

In our Florida travels we've never found a finer spot to relax than here at the quietly casual yet luxurious Ponte Vedra Inn and Innlet . . .

Our personal choice was The Innlet because the colonial-styled unit reminded us of the North Shore and the homes there . . .

It was a warm, beautiful early afternoon as we drove through cleaned-up Jacksonville, Florida and headed South . . .

"Funny name for a town, isn't it?" my traveling companion remarked as we sped by the road sign, "PONTE VEDRA".

QUAINT, RESTFUL . . .

Up the road a bit we noted a handsome club house known hereabouts as the Ponte Vedra Club.

We were about ready to stop there for the night but we continued driving while we discussed whether we should stay or drive on.

A mile, or so, further South we spotted the Innlet, a quaint and restful-looking spot . . .

We stopped, went in, looked over the pine-paneled-quarters-on-the-ocean . . .

We were delighted and decided to stay the night . . .

But we didn't stay for just one night . . .

We've stayed, so far, 12 days and nights.

And we're enjoying (shift to the active tense!) every minute here.

HIGHLAND PARKERS WOULD LIKE . . .

You Highland Parkers would like it here.

The folks, the food, the atmosphere are a great deal like those found at Highland Park clubs.

The courteous folks at the Innlet and Inn who've made our stay pleasant are G. H. Ackerman, Innlet manager; Maurice Lindsay and Frederick Wilds, Mr. Ackerman's assistants; Betty Bacon, popular Innlet hostess . . .

INN'S STAFF . . .

And at the Inn . . . Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Stockton (Mr. Stockton is president of the Club); F. R. Kroner, general manager; J. M. Brown, resident manager; and pretty Georgia Latta and former Highland Park, J. A. Crawford of the public relations department . . .

Nor do we want to forget "Sam", head man at the Bath Club, for his part in making our stay refreshing.

Or John Wheeler, Innlet head waiter; or Harry Collins, our waiter whose friendly spirit and speedy service made each meal a treat.

Our thanks also to expert chef George Gardner whom we never met but whose delicious meals we enjoyed three times each day . . .

LEARNS TO DANCE, ONCE AGAIN . . .

Bob Cutting's music—particularly when he played tunes like "Stardust"—made us forget the hotter "cold war," now in process, and showed us we still can dance.

One of the highlights of our stay was the Candle Light Buffet we attended last night.

Truly the food was fit for a king!

Yes, Highland Parkers, we unhesitatingly recommend Ponte Vedra to you . . .

Next time you're Florida-bound, pause at this delightful mecca of gracious living and we'll wager you'll stay on and on . . .

(Editor's Note: Next, week Whitt will tell of his meeting with John L. Lewis and report further on his Florida travels.)

Green Bay School Barn Dance And Bingo March 17
