Manana

I'll never be a poet
For the beauty of a spring
Is lost in idle dreaming
And I never write a thing.

Then summer, rich in verdure,
Holds my fancies for a spell;
It awes me with its splendor
In a way I cannot tell.

As autumn's crimson mantle
Spreads across a hazy land
NO words of mine can paint it
In a way you'd understand.

Comes then the winter season
With its fields of glistening white
I walk by frozen rivers
Still wishing I could write.

I'll never be a poet—
It has always been my curse,
The changing seasons find me
With a heart too filled for verse.
—Kay of Culver City

Fizzle Quiz

(Score yourself ten for each correct answer.)
First, consider the ways of a cartoonist—
He shows the office of Radish and Onion, Attorneys-at-Law. Why is their name on the inside of the door?
In any illustration of a person using a telephone, the instrument is held to the right ear. Why?
Why is a baby always pictured in three-cornered protectors? The square-pinned method has been prevalent for years. (Where has Mr. Cartoonist been? Is he a bachelor?)
Why is a rich old play-boy never depicted as any type but fat? Of course he must have a walrus moustache and wear a fancy vest and spats.
Why does a wise-cracking parrot always sit on a T-shaped perch instead of being in a cage?
Why does a tramp carry his belongings in a bandana which swings on a stick across one shoulder?
Why must an unemployed actor have long hair, a wrinkled Chesterfield coat and a shabby stove-pipe hat?
As cartoonists are creatures of habit there is nothing we can do about it.

Hence, the perfect score is zero.

Quatrains

The hedonists who often quote
From Omar's neat quatrains
Assume a drunken sensuous gloat
Was meant in his refrains.

Which only goes to show it seems
We see just what we are
And of his joyous cosmic dreams
The meanings we must mar.

For in his craving for the grape
The wine was of the soul,
The tavern door that stood agape
An austere monkish hole.

And from the wine the Guru poured
Arose great ecstasy
And drinking more his spirit soared
Into bright phantasy.

And from his mystic Persian thought
Impassioned words were flung
The Ultimate was all he taught,
The Sufi spoke in tongue.
—Loki

Stop Me If . . .

Of course you've heard this one, but—
An elderly Scotchman was halted on the street by a Salvation Army lassie with the plea:
"Would you give two shillings to your Lord?"
"Aye, that I would," responded Scotty. Then, shrewdly:
"How old are you, lassie?"
She confessed to 18 years.
"Well," mused Scotty, "I'm 72. And since it's quite likely that I'll meet the Lord before you do, I'll just present the two shillings to him per-r-sonally."

Ravinia Garden Club Plans 20th Garden Fair, May 21

The 20th annual Garden Fair of the Ravinia Garden Club will be held on the Village Green in Ravinia on Saturday, May 21, from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. The proceeds will be used to support the Rose Garden in Ravinia and to further beautify the suburban stations of Ravinia and Braeside.

A wide variety of garden plants will be available, including choice annuals in flats or pots, perennials, vines, herbs and vegetables. Special effort has been made to make the gadgets table complete with all of the tested and most popular garden tools and accessories. The donations table will have prize plants from the members' gardens, and rare varieties of bloom, which are not otherwise available. Garden consultants from the club will be on hand to discuss gardening problems.

Mrs. Ralph Archer, club president, has appointed Mrs. George Spiel general chairman of the affair. The following members of her committees have been making plans for many weeks: Mesdames William Alderman, flowers; Francis Yager, gadgets; Clifford L. Makelim, food; Frederick Mudge, salesgirls; Theodore Hazen, mechanics; V. Edward Lawrence, publicity; Judson Cross, plan donations; Mason Smith, herbs; Eugene Kern, beverages; C. Longford Felske, perennials and vegetables.

Visitors are urged to come early, when the selection is varied, and plan to stay for the picnic lunch of home-cooked foods served on gaily colored tables under the trees.

Trinity Guild Plans Annual Flower Fair Saturday, May 28

The third annual Flower Fair, presented by St. Martha's Guild of Trinity Church Highland Park, will be held on Saturday, May 28, in its customary location at Central Avenue and the Northwestern Station. As in former years, annuals only will be sold.

As a new feature of this year's sale, Adele Whitfield, 908 Marion Avenue, chairman of the Flower Fair, announces that they have available immediately the lists of plants for sale for those who wish to place advance orders. These order blanks can be secured from Miss Whitfield, Highland Park 2867, or any of the members of her committee, Miss Dorothy Simpson, 130 Roger Williams and Mrs. Frank Miller, 1010 Marion. Other committee chairmen for the Flower Fair are: Miss Helen Bergstrom and Mrs. J. G. Tippen for General Planning; Miss Jean Butz for Garden Tool sales and Miss Evelyn Oliver for Bird House sales.

Class Play Presented At Lincoln School Friday, May 13

A delightful comedy "Beauty and the Beef" by William Davidson will be presented at 8:00 p.m. on the thirteenth of May by the members of the eighth grade of Lincoln School. The dress rehearsal of this production directed by Miss Helen Boyce will be given at 1:15 p.m. on the afternoon of May 12th. Both productions will take place in the Lincoln School auditorium.

"Y" Plans Spring Tea Friday, May 27

The YWCA is planning a Spring Tea for Friday, May 27th, from 2 to 4 p.m. The newly-decorated rooms will be open for inspection, and an added attraction will be a demonstration of the art of flower arrangement by Hortense Baldauf.

Mrs. Baldauf is well known on the North Shore for her gift in arranging flowers to their greatest advantage, and she is in great demand as a judge at garden shows.

All members of the "Y" and of the community are cordially invited to come and bring a friend.
