Take Care of Electric Cords and Safeguard Your Home

When you inspect the cords and plugs on your appliances look for these danger signs: worn insulation ... broken plugs ... loose prongs ... frayed or damaged outer cover.

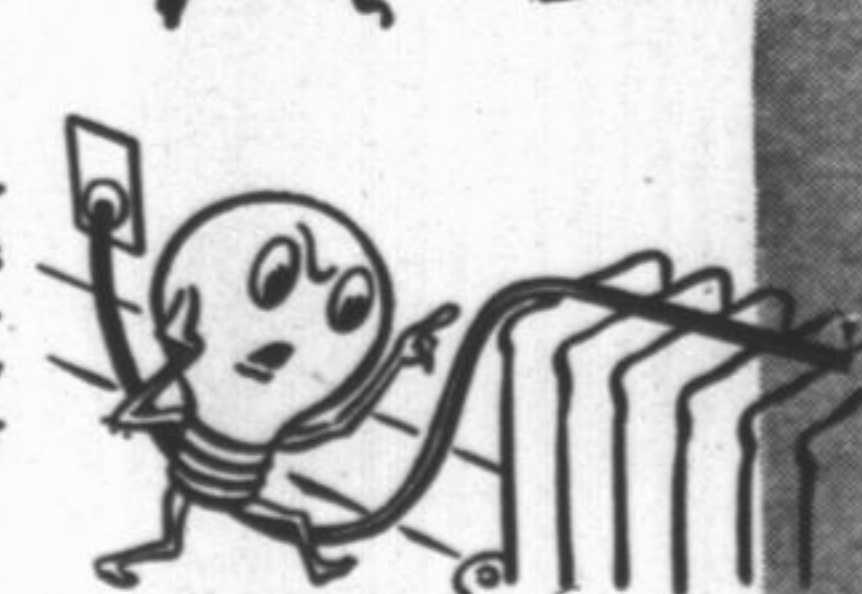

Never run cords under rugs—stepping and walking on them breaks down the insulation and this damage may be overlooked.

Disconnect heating appliances when not in use to prevent fires.

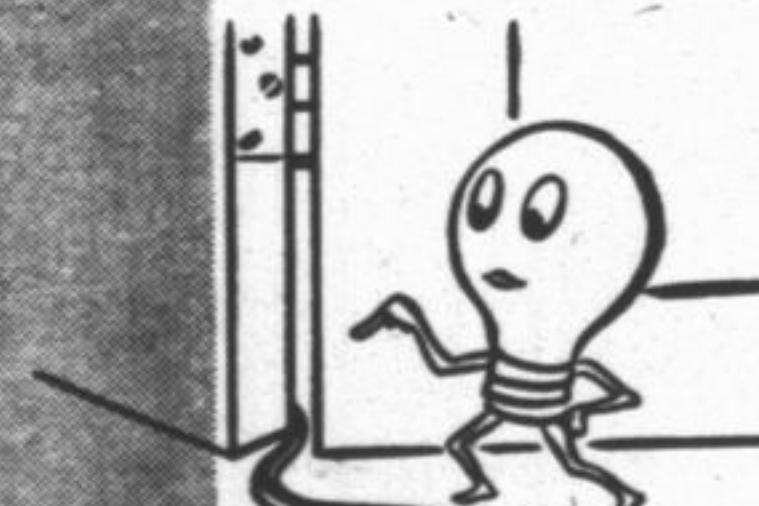

Cords should never be run over radiators or steam pipes—over-heating may soften insulation or cause it to crack.

Cords should never be used as a substitute for permanent and properly installed wiring.

Do not place cords in door jambs—squeezing breaks the protective covering.

Do not disconnect appliances by pulling on the cord—this loosens the connections.

Cords should be examined regularly—worn cords should be replaced to prevent short circuits and possible electric shock.

Have all electrical repairs and wiring done by a competent electrical contractor.
