Colored Chorus—

Among the singers is Eugene Brice, a brother of Carol Brice, the contralto. Another, Will Barnes, was the tenor and arranger of the original Beale Street boys. Clarence Jacobs, assistant to the conductor, won five battle stars for service at Gaudalcanal and the Solomons. Herbert Hayes was cited for originating a new firing system for cannon that the Army adopted. Grady Menefield was in a tank destroyer outfit.

The chorus has its own basketball, volley ball and football teams, and accepts any local challenges they can fit into the time between concerts. They grin as they remark that they are the "only concert attraction which should be covered by a music critic and a sports writer."
