Spare Me Psychiatry

I hope that I shall never be a victim of psychiatry. To me it seems a thought abhorred. Our inner minds should be explored;

To always seek the reason why We smoke, or drink, or hate, or lie; Why, if these bring satisfaction, Analyze the mundane action?

Believe me I will hold no tryst With any psychoanalyst Who'd take a clock apart to see What makes it tick so merrily.

I'm unconcerned with what they think Leads me to smoke, or hate, or drink; Their diagnoses, though terrific, Still are pseudo-scientific.

Pertinent Paragraph

"It isn't marriage that fails... marriage only succeeds in showing people up."

Consternation!

It doesn't pay to blow your top. I learned this the hard way.

Last week, I had lunch with a friend in a popular tea room where the service and food were awful. The waitress had the air of a temperamental Hollywood actress, and the coffee was atrocious. (All my friends know that a cup of poor coffee spoils my whole day.)

Well, I left no tip for Miss High-and-Mighty, and, on the way out, decided to voice my sentiments to the hostess.

I took a deep breath and said to myself, "Be a lady, Old Girl, even if it kills you." In an aristocratic voice, I told my story.

She was completely uninterested so I informed her that I'd never patronize the establishment again. Stalking out, we got into my car and I slammed the door hard. Then I discovered that I had left my brand new nylon gloves on the table. What to do!

With chin in air, I went back and found the gloves where I had left them. Amid triumphant, sneering grins, I departed once more and realized that a five-foot gal can't impress anyone with her dignity.

It's the Same Difference!

A princess is a person With torso, arms and legs... And many a maid would swap her own For gams as neat as Meg's.

But why create an issue With vast publicity

Of a pretty little princess Bathing at Capri?

Pass the Cigars, Skeezix

Ho, ho! He's done it again. Frank King has produced an effect with one of those clever twists of his that set a nation rocking back on its heels.

So come out from behind the furniture, Nina, and take a bow.

Collectors' Study Group Sponsors New Venture, "Living With Antiques"

The Collectors' Study Group of the Highland Park Woman's Club is sponsoring an entirely new venture this spring. On Thursday May 26th, between the hours of 1 and 5 p.m. they have arranged for a tour of five homes in our community called "Living with Antiques". So many people have the mistaken notion that antiques are only to be admired as decorator's items, that this tour is offered to show you how much these beautiful pieces from the past can contribute to comfortable gracious living in our modern times.

Several of these homes which are to be opened are completely furnished with antiques and all of them contain superb collection, many of the pieces of museum calibre, and the Collectors' Study Group are indeed grateful to our hostesses for allowing us the privilege of showing you how truly they are "Living With Antiques".

You are invited to commence your tour at any of the homes listed below as there is no specified order in which the homes may be visited. A copy of "Directions for Tour of Homes" will be attached to each ticket. Tea will be served at the home of Mrs. W. C. Shipnes.

Following is a list of the homes with their location and some of the items of interest to be enjoyed. Mrs. Sigmund Livingston, 225 Cary Ave., Ravinia

One of the oldest houses in Ravinia that has been remodelled to house the fine collections of Mrs. Livingston. Most unusual are the four miniature rooms, designed and executed by Mrs. Livingston and completely furnished with exquisite miniature antiques and recessed into the living room walls. Early Meissen (onion pattern) and a wonderful collection of Pewter is in the dining room. Here you will also see Pennsylvania Dutch "Fraktur" paintings and Samplers, painted tinware and Slip pottery plus an outstanding collection of Lustre. The house is completely furnished with antiques.

Mrs. A. J. McMaster, Wilmot Road, Bannockburn, Ill.

This is a delightful house built just seven years ago specifically to house the many beautiful collections of Mrs. McMaster. Our first glimpse inside shows us a charming Victorian Living room. On closer examination you will find that Mrs. McMaster has combined many periods in her rooms with great skill and we have a thoroughly livable home. Don't miss the family letters and pictures.

Vets Ask Passage Of Anti-Bias Bill

North Shore ex-GI's urged state legislators to adopt anti-discrimination legislation this week, terming such action "truly American" and a realization of goals for which the United States fought in the war.

"New York state's job bias ban was denounced by some people before it became law, but it has worked out highly satisfactorily in practise," declared Howard Kraus, Glencoe, vice-chairman of North Shore Chapter, American Veterans Committee. "Compliance has been willing, enforcement almost unnecessary. Illinois should offer the same guarantee of equal job opportunity regardless of race."

A bill for a state FEPC is up for decision this week at Springfield, Kraus said. Its most important effect, he held, will be to allow employers a wider choice by freeing them of the fear of prejudice. Most businessmen like to be fair, but are timid about breaking taboos which stem from unfamiliarity, he suggested.

Kraus took occasion to compliment Representatives Harvey Pearson, Republican, and Thomas Bolger, Democrat, of the Eight District, for their votes in favor of a Constitutional Convention resolution which failed of passage in the Illinois House last week. He aimed strong criticism at Rep. Nick Keller, Eighth District Republican, for what he termed a "cynical betrayal" of his campaign promises and the public welfare, in a last-minute switch against the resolution.

Pearson, reported wavering on the issue, last week told AVC Secretary Everett Millard, Highland Park, that there was a good
