Kindness

A loan of gold can be returned
As mere accommodation.
But kindness in adversity
Brings heartfelt perceptivity
And lifelong obligation.

Marmalade

What's In A Name?

Dear Millie:
Much against our better judgment we drove all night. Somewhere out in the southwest where villages are few, small and far between, we came to an intersection of roads. While deciding on our route, R.B. noted a hamburger shack.
"Let's have a cup of coffee."
"It won't be too clean," I warned.
"Anyway, it will keep us awake."

He stopped the motor and we went into the dingy stall.
A neat, middle-aged woman took our order while she chatted in friendly fashion with tall, big-hatted men, hunched in Saturday night relaxation on narrow stools.
Presently the cook ventured out of a smoke-filled cubby-hole to join in the jokes. He was tall, paler than most men who know the sunshine of the west, and he wore steel-rimmed spectacles fogged by grease. His apron was spattered by long hours of devotion to hamburgers and mustard.
"Bet his name's Jack-in-the-Box," I mumbled to R.B.
"Hair's too long," he mumbled in return.

"Maybe Junior."
"Nope. There never could have been a senior with a mop like that."

The thatch in question rose from its middle part to a height of about two inches above his head and then sank dejectedly until it touched the tops of his ears. It was very thick and black.
"Ivan . . . Butch . . . Karl," I continued guessing, but nothing quite suited.

"Anyway, it's a magnificent crop."

"Tops!" replied R.B., impishly. The waitress came our way toward the outside door. "I'll be back in a moment," she called as she passed us. Then,
"Say, Virgil, give this lady some more hot coffee."

As always,
E.B.

Bojangles

Instinct was his teacher. Nimble feet
Obeyed the workings of some inner plan,
Inspiring rhythmic poem. In a dream
He found the art of dancing up a stair.
A mighty heart and love of fellow man
Precluded earthly gain—but won a goal;
And even now, no doubt, his twinkling toes
Are tap-tap-tapping up those golden stairs.

Mrs. Sidney Frisch Hostess To DAR Thursday, Dec. 8

On Thursday, December 8th at one-thirty o'clock in the afternoon Mrs. Sidney Frisch, 144 Ravinia Court, Highland Park will open her home for a meeting of the North Shore Chapter of the DAR of which Mrs. William F. Einbecker is Regent. The Chorus of the Highland Park Music Club will render two groups of songs, one of which will be of Christmas Carols. A lyric soprano member of the chorus will sing some solos.

Mrs. W. Frank Mayer, Chairman of the Ellis and Angel Island Committee will report on the work done on Ellis Island. A silver collection will be given for this very worthy work.

In 1923 The Federal authorities asked DAR to take charge of occupational work among the immigrants at Ellis Island. The DAR also gives Manuals of Citizenship to the Immigrants, translated into many languages, a recent one being in Chinese. Since the war the immigration office has been moved to New York City and Ellis Island has been used as a deportation center for aliens and undesirables. The DAR is ready to resume its work when immigrants begin coming to this country in great numbers again.

In 1934 The Federal Authorities asked the DAR to take charge of occupational therapy at the U.S. Marine Hospital on the Island. Work is done with the neuro-psychiatric, the tubercular and the general medical patients of the hospital. The DAR pays the salaries of four therapists at Ellis Island and for one at Staten Island besides furnishing all the materials used. About $20,000.00 was spent by the Society in 1947 and the amount expended this year will amount to more. Some of this money is donated by individual chapters.

Hostesses assisting Mrs. Frisch for the afternoon are, Mrs. William N. Alderman, Mrs. Lyle Gourley, Mrs. Casper W. Haupt, Mrs. Robert F. Patton and Mrs. Robert F. Prosser. Members wishing transportation may call Mrs. V. Edward Lawrence, H. P. 4632.

Bethany Church To Present "Symphony Of The Southland"

At eight o'clock on Friday night, December 2, Ray Eggersted will show his latest travel film, "Symphony of the Southland" at the Bethany Evangelical United Brethren Church, Laurel at McGovern, displaying his treasure chest of scenic gems in adventure and colorful gaiety, filled with exotic blossoms, birds and wildlife.

The scenes will begin in Florida, with beaches, palm trees, fishing and sports. At Tarpon Springs the Greek Colony and the largest sponge fleet in action, will be shown. Then on along the Great Gulf to Mobile for the annual pilgrimage to the historic Natchez on the Mississippi, onward to New Orleans to the French Quarters, and the sight of unloading bananas from Guatemala.

Texas will be next, and then across into Old Mexico where open markets, sub-tropical gardens, the famous pool of gardenias, the drama of Paracutin, a world famed volcano, deep sea fishing, and a bull fight will thrill the spectators.

Mr. Eggersted has acquired an enviable reputation as photographer, who has synchronized kodochrome pictures to the playing of well chosen music. This, his newest picture, will be shown under the auspices of the Charisma Club, Sture Johnson, President. Tickets for children and for adults may be secured from Club members at reasonable rates or at the door on the night of the performance.

Expert On Table Ware To Address Collector's Study Group Dec. 6

The Collector's Study Group of the Highland Park Woman's Club welcomes back one of its favorite speakers on Tuesday, December 6, at 10:30 A.M., when Mrs. Bentley F. Ramsdell of Geneva, Illinois will speak on "Two Hundred Years of American Table Ware, 1620-1820" starting with the wooden ware used in the early days of the Pilgrims, down thru the periods of Pewter, Earthenware and up to Tucker China, an American product of about 1820-30. Mrs. Ramsdell will not only talk about, but will show the various stages of tableware used by our forefathers, because she has promised to bring with her from her own collections an ample supply of these items to illustrate her talk.

Mrs. Ramsdell is one of the best informed persons on American Antiques in the middle west and is a most enthusiastic and interesting speaker. She has done a great deal of research on this subject and has given this talk twice this fall, once before the Antiquarian Society of Milwaukee and before the Midwestern Antique Association.

Anyone interested in Antiques is most cordially invited to come to these meetings held the first Tuesday of each month, at 10:30 A.M. at the Clubhouse. A small guest fee is charged. Mrs. Wilford C. Shipnes is in charge of the December meeting and will introduce the speaker.
