Meet The Puffin— It's Different!

Did you ever hear of A bird called the puffin
With beak like a parrot
And shape like a muffin?

I suspect it's as novel
To you as to me,
For it lives in an island
Way out in the sea.

Great, snowy gannets
Guard its retreat—
Kittiwakes and great auks,
With their funny web feet.

I confess I'm intrigued
By this bird called the puffin—
With beak like a parrot
And shape like a muffin.
—Highland Lassie

I'll Take Vanilla

My uncle Charlie is something of a droll character, and whether by chance or design, he often gives Aunt Carrie a hard time.

One day my aunt had planned a dessert of ice cream for a large family dinner. She instructed Uncle to buy the three flavors she named, and when he brought them, placed the cartons in the freezing compartment of the refrigerator, giving her attention to other things until time to serve dessert.

She made quite a ceremony of asking the choice of each guest.
Some chose strawberry, some chocolate, and some vanilla. Lastly she came to Uncle.

"We - el," he drawled, "I WOULD like chocolate, but I WILL take vanilla, since that is the only kind I brought."

"Do you mean to say, Charlie," my aunt demanded, "that you let all our guests choose their flavor, knowing all the time that there was only one kind to serve?" Uncle looked hurt. "I didn't see any harm," he answered, "in at least letting them express their preference."

Ma Learns A Proverb

Since tide and man's activities
Are ruled by ebb and flow, Finances have no mysteries To Ma. She's in a glow.

Regarding cash, the axiom Relieves her mind of doubt.
Pa banks within the maximum—
Her job's to take it out.

Mary Ellen

With his orchid on her shoulder,
Dancing with a new boy friend,
Found she liked his arms to hold her,

With his orchid on her shoulder . . .
Wondered—would his lips grow bolder?

Prayed the night would never end,
With his orchid on her shoulder,
Dancing with a new boy friend,

The Egg

A farmer has found he has musical hens,
Which raucous, loud sounds drive demented,
But which, when the wireless disperses sweet sounds, Lay more eggs, because they're contented.

At that they're no different from Some folks we know
Who often lay eggs
By radio.

Vice President Barkley will be introduced by Harold L. Ickes, former Secretary of the Interior, who will serve as chairman of the Fifth Anniversary Dinner honoring the school and its founders.

The college, which has no endowment, will be awarded a Fifth Anniversary Gift expected to exceed $100,000. The fund will be presented to Dr. Edward J. Sparling, founder and president of the school, as part of the fifth anniversary celebration.

Music Club Considers Project Of Scholarship

Nationally noted for its stand against racial and religious discrimination in higher education, the college was dedicated in 1945 by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt. During its five-year history its student body has increased from 1,200 to 5,700 and its faculty has grown from 84 to 330.

A few of the uses for an Electric Dehumidifier

Recreation Room
Use your basement recreation room all year 'round.
A Dehumidifier makes room completely comfortable in summer months—prevents mildew and rot.

Home Workshop Protect those tools in your basement workshop.
Corrosion due to high humidity just doesn't happen when you have a Dehumidifier.

Decorating
No more dampness problem after you plug in a Dehumidifier. Fresh paint, plaster and new cement floors dry quickly.

Store Windows
Don't let "sweat" cloud your show windows.
Florists' shops or other stores with this trouble can clear their windows with a Dehumidifier.
