

Deep and Shallows

Dear Millie:

I enjoyed so much ACO's "Looking Back", a few weeks ago. I wondered if perhaps her counting were wrong. Perhaps her years come to 48 instead of 84.

While reading her self-portrait I was reminded of a story she once told me of a game she played on every New Year's eve.

They took the calendar of the year, just past, and turned it back, month by month, enjoying again the high-light occasions. There was much laughter in recalling the happy details of picnics, shopping days, visits and plain beautiful every-day life.

Therein it seems to me is ACO's greatest gift. Although honest with herself, and therefore with everyone else, she finds the good and splendid things of life so numerous that there is no time left for dwelling long upon the sorrows.

Her vital interest in all of Highland Park's worthwhile activities has been one of the stimulating and inspiring effects upon her friends.

I used to love to watch her staleness as she entered Writing Class at the "Y". She gave a dignity to the occasion. She listened attentively and gave constructive criticism. There was an exactness about her mien that encouraged us all to greater endeavor.

She gave generously of time and money.

The writing class then needed no hard and fast rules of organization. We were individuals, expressing ourselves without the complexities of modern psychology.

Many of us were dated and no doubt "nice" in our expressions, but, my dear Millie, you will agree with me that ACO has proved beyond doubt that life and writing, too, can be beautiful and good.

What a privilege has been ours to have known and worked with ACO—a dear friend and a splendid American.

As always,
—E. B.

A Reason For Writing

A man expressed is well and free,
A man suppressed is ill.
We need our recognition—
We need a place to fill.

We dam up water for a time,
We store ideas too,
But 'til the floodgates open
The power cannot come through.

Until we share with others,
Until we sow the seeds
Our thought crops cannot ripen
And flower in noble deeds.
—Bizzi Bee

Neck-Romancy

The battle of the sexes, through
The years, brought skirmishes to wreck
Equality. No longer true
Today, because they're neck and neck.
—Marmalade

Barbed Bouquet

The pettiest of pin-pricks,
The subtlest of slams,
Is that weapon of the wish-no-
well—
The "faint praise that damns".

Local Young Man Crashes Hollywood

How you can make more money by mail by Whitt Northmore Schultz, Olson Printing Co., Highland Park, Ill., $1.

Mr. Schultz is president-partner of Northmore's Home Products, a successful mail order house of Highland Park, Ill. In less than four years he has built a $1200 investment into approximately $100,000 annual gross sales. So he knows what he's talking, or rather writing about.

His advice is practical and easy to understand. He says, "I can only call on about ten buyers a day when I see them in person. So I placed an ad. It cost $80. "That ad pulled 900 orders... and they're still coming in... nearly four years later from that same ad."

Then he goes on to tell what type and priced article sells best, how to choose your advertising medium, how to treat your orders when they come in.

All the techniques which he has gained by hard experience are given to you for a dollar. Sounds like a good investment for anyone wishing to branch out for himself.
