Williamsburg Inn, Williamsburg, Virginia:—

This is indeed a beautiful inn—quiet, charming, and steeped in rich Southern hospitality.

It's easy to see why so many Highland Parkers have spent vacations here. . . .

Folks here live in "low gear." They seem content to take life easy. No doubt they'll live much longer. . . .

We have a delightful room: Walls are papered in Williamsburg blue; the drapes have a deep red background with a bird design. Beds are soft and comfortable. And the bath is tiled in shiny blue and gray.

The food here is delicious and served to you in a leisurely fashion by a skilled staff headed by Alfonzo Pierce who has been at the Inn for over 17 years. . . .

This Is A Real Bit Of Old America

This quaint town gives you the feeling you're really in America because the things that are fine and important are captured and spotlighted here. . . .

The courteous managers and desk clerks make you feel welcome. And they have taken splendid care of the PRESS. . . .

New Travel Notes

Shell gas stations, we've found, usually have the cleanest wash rooms John D. Rockefeller, Jr. deserves great credit for his invaluable part in the restoration of Williamsburg, home of William & Mary College, second oldest in the United States, and the college where Thomas Jefferson studied. . . . Car manufacturers have done an outstanding job of perfecting automobiles so they can cruise all day at high speeds in faultless fashion. . . . We wonder who names the creeks, rivers, rocks, and bridges you see while traveling. . . . "Use Your Ash-Tray. Halt Forest Fires." You see signs like that in Virginia. The damage that can be done by a casually-tossed cigarette butt is tremendous. . . .

You'd never know a war was on when traveling Southward. The Korean War has been called World War II 1/2 by writer Bob Considine. . . . Wonder where Gen. MacArthur gets the funds to cover his $125-a-day Waldorf suite. That rent is more than the general's salary. . . .

Colored folks in the South appear much happier than those up our way.

All this business about racial prejudice has aggravated and not alleviated the problem, in this roving reporter's opinion. . . .

Nowhere will you find a more luxurious hotel than The Greenbrier at White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia. Here is exquisiteness at its height. . . .

Parting Thought
Traveling, no matter where you go or where you stay, makes you appreciate your home more!
