

SERMON IRON BRIDGE CENTENNIAL
Psalm 84 Acts 14:21-28

Tomorrow, your picture and your name, your signature on an old invoice, the minutes of your meeting, will be treasured and preserved. Why? Because they are a witness to all that God has done with us. They are a record of all that you have fulfilled. They will be a comfort and an inspiration to those who, a hundred years from now, will be worshipping God and trying to do His will.

The work which you have fulfilled is the faith that has been given to you by the grace of God. It is the faith that brought you here today and which, from day to day, makes you sing a hymn, or wield a cleaning-rag, or put a bulletin in a Bible.

That work which you have fulfilled may not be so obvious to you today, but it will be obvious to those who, a hundred years from today, will remember it. Let us declare with joy all that God has done with us. Today, we cannot even name it all. Tomorrow, it will be clear that God has fulfilled an extraordinary work with us. May those who come after us praise God and give thanks because of it. If they do, let that be our reward.
