

Fashion Show Presented in Wilberforce

Monmouth Agricultural Society

By Stewart Smith

Awards Night, and a supper for the community, were combined by the Monmouth Agricultural Society on Saturday afternoon and evening, October 8.

Awards were for achievements in the Monmouth Fair held in Wilberforce last summer. The Haliburton and District Lions Club Award for Most Points at the Fair was presented to Melanie Lewis.

The Monmouth Fair Board Award for Highest Points in the Junior Division was presented to Jessie Swan.

The Monmouth Fair Board Award for Highest Points in the Senior Division was presented to Gavin Swan.

The Sanderson family presented several awards in memory of Charles Daniel Sanderson.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Sanderson, Charles Daniel Sanderson was killed in a car accident on November 11, 1988. "He did enjoy writing, and art-work, and drafting," Ken Sanderson points out. But his greatest delight was writing. The awards are for writing and art, and include both a cash prize and a certificate.

The certificate explains: "This contest is sponsored by The Sanderson Families to encourage students to exercise their literary abilities and develop skills in art and writing. Your talents can be a living memorial to one" who loved and practised the skills of penmanship."

Trish Vanier, of Wilberforce Elementary School; and Barry Bolahood, of Gertrude Colpus School in Oshawa, were the Kindergarten poster contest winners.

Paige Bolahood, of Gertrude Colpus School, Oshawa, was the Grade 1 & 2 poster contest winner.

Matthew Sanderson, of Our Lady of Perpetual Help School, Toronto; and Daniel Vanier, of Wilberforce Elementary School, were the Grade 3 & 4 contest winners. The contest was a 300 word essay on, "A Day at the Fair."

Elizabeth Dowden, of Central Public School, Grimsby; and Jessica Bolahood, of Gertrude Colpus School, Oshawa, were the Grade 5 & 6 winners.

There were no entries for Grade 7 & 8.

More people attended the supper than were expected. There was sufficient food for 210 people. When the food ran out, the supper was "closed", and others were turned away.

first on keyboard, saxophone, and bass clarinet, and at one point playing an original composition. Then - to the special delight of everyone - Nathan played "In the Garden" on a saw. The clothes were wearable, and appeared comfortable. We did not learn prices; but our readers are invited to find this out as they visit Sheila Burke, at her Home Town Fashions Store, in the Steadman Mall, Haliburton.

This, she said, was her first fashion show. It was presented in the Lloyd Watson Centre, Wilberforce, on Saturday afternoon, October 15.

Sponsor was the Ladies Auxiliary of the Wilberforce Legion Branch 624.

The Legion L.A. also prepared and provided the lunch.

One of the models was May-Anne Jordens, who graced the front cover of the October 6 Cardiff Courier.

Other models were: Dorothy

Bebbington, Joan Clark, Marion Clark, Betty Hall, Betty Hayward, Joyce Maughan, and Ruth Vaughan.

The models came out on to a platform and under an arch. But then they mingled with the audience, walking among the tables, so that everyone present could admire and inspect the clothes. This system worked amazingly well.

Commentator was Barbara Barry.

Sheila Burke was also present for the show.

She purchases her fashions from several fashion houses. She mentions, for example: Joret, Hiroko, Nu-Mode, Queentex, and Spirit. She points out that the clothes are mostly Canadian made, from Montreal, Toronto, Vancouver, and other centres.

She also sells men's clothing (although there were no male models in this show) and jewellery at Home Town Fashions in Haliburton.

Why did they not take the opportunity to have Charles Hughes act as a model? He was present, with three of his sons: David, Timothy, and Nathan. They presented a musical interlude,
