

TORONTO, FRIDAY, JAN. 19, '72.

Second Parliament—First Session.

TORONTO, Jan 18, 1872.

Long before the hour appointed for the opening of Parliament the lobbies and corridors of the House were filled by a crowd who occupied every seat in the galleries in a few moments after the doors were opened. It seemed to be expected that some statement would be made as to the course which the new Administration would take, but that expectation was doomed to be disappointed.

The Speaker took the chair shortly after three o'clock.
