

Notes.

Ex-Ald. Parnell, Inspector Sanders and C. R. Jayer were among the Londoners who witnessed the proceedings.

Among the interested spectators on the floor of the House were Rev. Dr. Carman and Rev. Prof. Mowat of Kingston.

Mr. James Innes, ex-M.P., Guelph, paid a visit to the Legislative buildings yesterday.

Mr. Malcolm Bremner of The London Free Press viewed the opening ceremony from the Press Gallery.

The operation of a number of electric fans in the chamber was a boon to every person in it. By means of these fans the atmosphere was kept fresh constantly, and what would have otherwise been a most exhausting strain upon the spirits and physical endurance of those present was made a most pleasant and enjoyable function. There was some inconvenience experienced from the constant buzz of these fans, which necessitated the shutting down of those in the Press Gallery. The benefits experienced far outweighed this slight annoyance.

The members of the Press Gallery had an excellent opportunity of testing the value of the improvements made in accordance with the promise of the Attorney-General at the last session of the House. Although the acoustics are not yet by any means perfect, the alteration has been a distinct gain in that direction, which is appreciated by the members of the press. The lowering of the gallery has also materially increased the natural light in the chamber.
