

Dr. Pyne Speaks.

Referring to the fact that Sir George Ross spent most of his official life in the Education Department of the Province, Dr. Pyne remarked that during that time the universal testimony was that he devoted himself with industry and indomitable energy, never tiring, to the work of the department. Above all things, he thought Sir George Ross was marked by the Canadian sentiment he always maintained. He was very proud of calling himself a Canadian citizen, but he went further, and was noted for his Imperialism.

Better for His Life.

Mr. Marshall (Monck) alluded to Sir George as a great legislator and a great Canadian, a type of what is noblest and best for young Canadians to fashion themselves by.

Mr. A. E. Donovan (Brockville) also expressed appreciation of the life of the late legislator.
