New Motor Vehicle Regulations Apply to All Country Roads

Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Highways, yesterday brought down to the Legislature for first reading his bills to amend the Motor Vehicles Act and the Highways Traffic Act to the extent of instituting compulsory carrying of lights by all vehicles and increasing the speed limit to 35 miles an hour. Mr. Henry said subsequently that the new regulations would apply generally to country roads. The new speed limit would become effective, he declared, on Royal assent being given to the bill. While, he said, he had given no consideration as yet to a likely date for the placing in operation of the light-carrying regulation, it was quite possible that it would be effective at the same time as the first change.

London Deputation Urges Greater Efficiency With Fewer Members

PREMIER IS SYMPATHETIC

Authority for reduction in membership of the London School Board from twelve to six members will, if granted by the Department of Education, be vested in the City of London Bill, which will be considered at an early date by the Private Bills Committee of the Legislature.

A deputation from the London Board waited on Premier Ferguson yesterday, to press the claim that reduction in the membership would mean more efficient administration. The Prime Minister expressed his sympathy for the principle of the thing, but declined to give a decision until he had consulted departmental officials on details of the venture contemplated.

In the event of the proposal becoming law at this session, London will vote at its next municipal elections for a brand new board of six members, notwithstanding that some of the present members have another year of their elected terms to run.
