Judges May Decide

On Mortgage Pleas

The Attorney-General's moratorium bill, by which discretion to suspend mortgages would be left to courts, yesterday afternoon passed through committee stage in the Legislature. Following minor amendments on Wednesday, there was but little discussion yesterday on the bill, which is now standing for third reading. Colonel Price submitted alterations to the original bill through a clause which would allow applications under the act to be brought before local Judges of the counties as representatives of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Ontario.
