

JUDGE HART, in Eastern Steamship Company colours, was photographed at Toronto Elevators by the late James M. Kidd, on May 2, 1931.

This scenic view of JUDGE HART shows her downbound in the canal below Dickinson's Landing, with the Long Sault rapids in the background.

On November 28, 1937, JUDGE HART, JAMES STEWART and JOHN J. RAMMACHER were laying up for the winter at Toronto, their stacks still painted green, white and black.
