

A JOINT EFFORT

Clockwise from left, Halton Regional Police Service (HRPS) Search Coordinator Cst. Dave Freeland briefs SIRT team members and Dufferin Search and Rescue volunteers during a joint search and rescue training exercise at Kelso Conservation Area April 7. Officers representing several HRPS units participated in the day-long training, as did Halton paramedics, Milton fire crews and representatives from Conservation Halton. They were joined by officers from the Hamilton Police Service's Mounted Unit, Dufferin Search and Rescue volunteers and the Hamilton Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders of Canada. A reservist with the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders searches the dense brush at the base of the escarpment as part of the training exercise. Members of Halton's Marine Unit brave the cold and choppy waters in search of aircraft debris as part of a mock emergency scenario. HRPS Det. Cst. Chris Hefferman of the Collision Reconstruction Unit readies a drone for a bird's eye view of a search area. Denise Leonard, a sergeant with the Hamilton police, and mount MacNabb, search a wooded area long the Kelso reservoir.

Graham Paine/Metroland

I AM A YOUNG DRIVER

CLASS OF 2018

CLASS OF 1979

Join 1.3 million grads
in a tradition of excellence.

Sign up today!

905-878-2420

YOUNG DRIVERS
www.yd.com