Crime Stoppers takes tips on wildlife crime

Crime Stoppers of Halton is joining the effort to combat crime against wildlife and nature.

This initiative follows the signing of an agreement between the Canadian Crime Stoppers Association and Environment and Climate Change Canada to combat poaching and stop the destruction of federally protected wildlife.

Today wildlife crime nets illicit revenues totalling US$155 billion and is the world's fourth most lucrative criminal enterprise ranking behind the illegal drug trade, human trafficking and counterfeiting, says Det. Const. Jodi Richmond, co-ordinator of Halton's Crime Stoppers program.

"Money generated from the smuggling and trafficking of animals and plants helps finance organized crime groups in countries around the world, including Canada," Richmond said.

"Although criminal groups
