NO CHARGES WILL BE LAID AGAINST COUNCILLOR: OPP

NATHAN HOWES

The Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) has closed the book on an investigation into a Milton councillor's 2014 election finances.

After several months of reviewing Coun. Arnold Huffman's election expenses, the OPP will not be laying charges against him.

The outcome of the review was addressed in a letter to town clerk Troy McHarg, who received it via email from Halton Regional Police Service Deputy Chief Nishan Duraiappah July 18. It was shared with councillors at Monday's council meeting.

The letter states Halton police was notified of the OPP investigation result early last week.

"Although we do anticipate being provided with documentation related to the investigation at a later date, no further review or
