Philip Ray and Enoch Arden

Phil did not ful-fill her notions, She perferred to mate with E. Him she wedded, and she bore lrim Pretty little children three;

Both were "spoons" on Annie Lee;

But becoming short of rino, Enoch went away to sea. Leaving Mrs Arden owner Of a well-stock'd village shop, Selling butter, soap, and treacle,

Beeswax, whipcord, lollipop. Ten long years she waited for him, But he neither came nor wrote, Wherefore, she concluded Enoch

Could no longer be afloat. So when Philip came to ask her If she would be Mrs. Ray, She, believed she was widow'd

Could not say her suitor "nay;" And a second time was married, Gave up selling bread and cheese, And in due time Philip nursed a A little Ray upon his knees.

But, alas! the long-lost Enoch Turn'd up unexpectedly, And was vastly disconcerted By this act of biga-my.

Yet reflecting on the subject, He determined to atone For his lengthened absence from her By just leaving well alone.

Taking to his bed he dwindled Down to something like a shade, Settled with his good landlady, Next the debt of nature paid.

Then, when both the Rays discovered How poor Enoch's life had ended, They came out in handsome style, and Gave his corpse a fun'ral splendid.

This is all I knew about it, If it's not sufficient, write By next mail to Alfred Tenny-Son, P. L., the Isle of Wight.

Do Nor WRITE POETRY. -If you cannot help it, if it sings in your ears an will be heard, why then there is no other way than to put it upon paper, and send to the printer. But try to help it if Coffins of all sizes and descriptions made you can. There are only two or three promptly. Prices from $10 to $24. write poetry and cannot. Rhymes are not poetry. Verse is not poetry. You may make correct verse with faultless rhymes, and there is not a gleam of poetry in it. Poetry requires a pecuir faculty, the imagination-and you may have genius, science, learning and the power of expression so as to write prose to rival Burke or Johnston, and after all make your self ridiculous by trying your hand at poetry.—N. Y. Observer.

SWEET POTATOES IN THE PLACE OR HYACINTHS .- A curious as well as simple and interesting experiment may be performed in the following manner: - abandon the old system of selling Goods Take a sweet potatoe, place it in the the mouth of a transparent jar so that it parmaster and honest dealer to make good the losses caused by trusting the imprudent and dishonest. They now water, and set it where the temperature is quite even. Almost any place in the house will do, as in a window where it gets the light. The progress will at first be slow; replenish the jar with water as the potato absorbs it, keeping the water up to the middle of the potato, and soon roots will appear from the part in the water. From this point its growth is quite rapid, the roots striking downward, finally it begins to sprout from the top, green leaves appear, and it continues to grow like a climbing vine, attaining a vard in length and making a fine plant. I have started several in this manner, and now have one doing well.—[Scientific]
