'I am getting weaker; just touch r lips again with the jug. Ah! Peter, Peter, you watered the drink."

"No, indeed, father, but it's the taste is leavin' you," says Peter, and again a low chorus of compassionate pity murmured through the cabiu. "Well, I'm nearly done now," said my father; "there's only one plot of ground remaining and I put it on you, Peter-as ye wish to live a good man, and die with the same easy heart as I do now-that ye mind my last words to

"Yes, sir, yes, father, we're all minding," chorused the audience. "Well, then, it's my last will and testament and may-give me over the jug,"- here he took a long drink-"and may that blessed liquor be poisoned to me if I'm not as eager about this as roads to poor Con. Cregan, for he has a heavy charge, and is an honest and as hard-working a man as I ever knew. Be a friend to him, Peter dear; never let him want while ye have it yourself -think of me on my death bed whenever he asks you for any trile.
