I've seen some elves who call themselves My friends in summer weather, Blown far away in sorrow's day, As winds would blow a feather:

I never grieved to see them go -The rascals—who would heed 'em? For what's the use of having friends, If false, when most you need 'em

I've seen some rich in worldly gear, Eternally repining-

Their hearts a pray to every fear-With gladness never shining; I would not change my lithsome heart,

For all their gold and sorrow-For that's a thing that all their wealth Can neither buy nor borrow.

A TEXAS HORSE STORY

George W. Kendall writes from Texas to the New Orleans 'Picayune': You must all recollect little Winter. of Georgia, who used to keep a baking and lottery office at Montgomery, Alabama. Well, one afternoon, as Winter was sitting in front of his office, a chap came cavorting up on the outside ot a showy horse, head and tail up, and promptly opened, as he drew rein, with : Winter, do you want a horse?'

"No," was the respnose. The chap put spurs to the sorel, of course on the off side from where Winter sat, and caracoled and cavorted Cash System, about the street. Finally, drawing up a second time in front of the office, he All goods are marked at the lowest rereopened with :
