A Strange Story.

The Memphis Appeal tells this singular little story: The love of learning in some minds does not die after marriage, and perhaps not after death. There is a little person with long flaxen hair, a straight, thin nose, and watery blue eyes, attending our public schools, who had been married over a year. Herself and her dear old man (their combined ages about thirty-five years) came here from Alabama shortly after they were made one. They were considerably annoyed at first by the bulky charges of unscrupulous board-house keepers, and were kept knocking about like a cloud in a gale of wind for some Finally, however, peace settled upon them in a two-roomed cottage in a back alley, where they can live cheap. She has been going to school for a couple of months, and whenever the weather is fine her little negro servant goes to meet her with the baby about three o'clock in the afternoon. It is as curious as interesting to observe the little flaxen-haired mother exchange her books and slate for the bundle of shawl with a face peeping out of it at the street corner. It is also affecting to observe that little face grow red under the multiplied applied, with undiminished fervor, day after day.

Hop Circular.

Speculators and shippers having withdrawn from the market, we have again to report a very quiet trade. The only inquiry this week has been for choice grades of New York State for brewing purposes. We hardly feel warranted in reducing quotations, though it must be a lmitted that our highest figures in extremes rarely

It is really surprising to see how the New York and London hop markets Whose work has given very good satisfaction. assimilate. The advantages of cable intercourse, above the old style of mail communication by steamer, seem but too line appreciated by our dealers. Most of our regular shippers have employed a system of telegraphing by chart or cipher, through which means long sentences can be communicated by a single word, figure or letter. The plan saves great expense, and enables our dealers to keep themselves thoroughly posted on the condition and changes of both markets.

Receipts of the week, 435 bales. Receipts corresponding week last season. Total receipts of the season, 41,108 bales. Total receipts corresponding season last year, 91,580 bales.

Our London correspondent writes as follows:-" The business transacted during the past month has apparently supplied the present wants of consumers, and the demand for medium and ordinary samples has somewhat flag ged; prices, however, for fine hops have not declined, but, on the contrary show an upward tendency. Foreign hops are in fair request, and maintain recent values. The low currency at which old Americans are now offered continues to attract the attention of and this class realize a slight advance. There has been more enquiry for new, and the small parcels which have recently arrived have sold at prices ranging from 56s to 65s. per

A CARD.

S the business we have carried on so satisfactorily to ourselves and the public for the last seven years has now changed hands, we cannot let this opportunit pass without returning our sincere thanks for the patronage which has been so liberally stowed on us. Our aim has always been to sell goods cheap, without loss to our where we bought cheaper than others (as was often the case), we gave our cus share of the benefit. By doing business in this way, and by dealing justly and honorably with the public, we have increased our business to an extent hitherto unknown in this par of Canada. We can confidently recommend our successors as men who will do business the full satisfaction of the public, and with further thanks for all past favors.

We remain, &c., BARCLAY & MCLEOD, Georgetown, January 19th, 1871.

T) EFERRING to the above card, we beg to say that in purchasing the bush ness of Messrs. Barclay & McLeod, we do so with a determination to uphold the reputation earned by them, and to obtain and deserve the esteem of the public. Actions speak louder than words, and we only ask the public to give us a trial. We are at preser clearing out the balance of our winter stock at reduced rates in order to clear our shelve our resident buyer in Europe having advised us of the purchase of several lines of sprin . We offer special bargains in Silks, Furs and Cottons, of which we have large stocks We have also piles of Dress Goods, Merinos, Flannels, Cloths and Clothing; these we offer cheap for CASH. NO SECOND PRICE. We have only one word more to say we enjoy all the advantages possessed by the late firm in capital and business connections : we can sell goods lower than most houses can buy them. This excites the envy and malice of pett dealers, who do all they can to injure and break down our trade; but as we know the pub lic have full confidence in us, we only say that we are satisfied to please them without trying to injure others, and we hope the liberal patronage accorded to our predecessors will be con-
