WHEN YOU WERE A LITTLE GIRL. was finished I began to feel a little better.

When you were a little girl it seems The very queerest thing To think our grandma wore a bib, And drove a cat with a string Did you have a hat in summer time With a great broad brim, like mine? And didn't it hang at the back of your neck When you wanted to smell the shine?

How could you always be seen and not heard ? And didn't you rump nor fuss ? And wasn't fun as funny then To you as it is to us? What kind of a doll did you rock to sleep?
An old-fashioned one, I know; Did it have a house? O grandma! say,

Did you ever stub your toe? I shouldn't wonder you went to school, And sat on Susie's side; Did ever a mean boy make you mad, And call you a "gal" when you cried What lots of berry beads you strung l'spect, and glass ones, too!

Did you ever giggle out, and then P'tend it wasn't you? To think you were a little girl ! It don't seem one bit true,
I'd rather kept on having fun,
And played the whole way through. How big was Santa, then, and did Your grandma trim the tree? And say "my baby" all the same,

Dear! but I'm tired in my head With wondering all about This grandma; why she didn't stay A girl, I can't find out. guess I know a place to rest Now sing and pet my curls-I wouldn't give my grandma up For a big round world of girls.

And you as old as me?
