POETRY.

POETRY. Poetry, poetry everywhere,
'Tis in the flowers, 'tis in the air; see it in the busy street. It greets me in the face I meet,

I see it in the shining dew, I see it in the waters blue, I see it in the moving cloud And hear it in the thunders loud I feel it in the gentle breeze,

I feel it floating from the trees.

Thus poetry doth fill our life;

I feel it in the lightening-flash, feel it in the thunder's crash. see it in the eye so mild. I hear it in the prattling child, I feel it in the gentle touch Of those dear friends I love so much
