artists for Christmas cards for 1883. The field of action.—Philadelphia Record. competition was keen amongst the artists, and some of the designs which failed to win for the franchise. In the competition a design by Mr. Cruickshank, of this city, young lady feeding doves. This card, the plug, though not so striking in appearance as Mr. Cruickshank's, amply justifles the high members of the society. The second public prize was awarded to Mr. Sharpnell, a wellknown member of the Ontario Society of Artists. The centre of design is a group of three hunters in front of their winter camp with a dog a dead deer, and a bush fire. The corner scenes are in keeping with the contre piece while the beaver at the top and a pair of snow-shoes at the bottom make up , an ensemble thoroughly characteristic of Canadian forest life. Three little girls, watching for Santa Claus before retiring to rest on Christmas Eve, make up the essential part of a beautiful design by Miss Tully, who won the high honor of occupyscene by Mrs. Hamilton of Paris, won the fourth prize on the artists award, and a fine representation of the Annunciation by Mrs. Schreiber was ranked fourth by the public vote. These six designs, and six others which did not draw any prize, were taken some time ago by Mr Ellis to Berlin, Germany, to be transferred by the process of chromo-'ithography. As might be expected the result is most satisfactory. The chromo work is of that strong and enduring character which has been made so familiar even of Prang's cards will bear comparison with these beautiful specimens in execution. se original plan of the publishers has succeeded admirably so far, and it needs only the liberal patronage of the public to at once justify and reward their enterprise.
