PRESONALS.—Mr. J. M. Kennedy, of class 23. is now editor-in-chief of "Palladium of Labor," a Hamilton paper, advocating the claims of the working man. If the old exclaims of the working man and of the political conflicts, were always interesting and assusing and not pupils will only just take a glance at his editorials they will find that the arguments on behalf of his clients flow from his lips on the High School rostrum, when he was opposed by "foemen worthy of his ateel."

Mass a genial, warm hearted friend, and a pleasant companion, and his reminiscences of the trials and struggles of the early settlers, of municipal buriness, and of the political conflicts, were always interesting and assusing and not ways interesting and surface which will defy competition. Look out for them.
