The general's report is a condemnation of the Militia Department rather than of the volunteers. Militia men armed with obsolete, wornout rifles, whose accoutrements are equally ancient and in many cases rotten, whose clothing is far from what it ought to be, who are called together for instruction in camp once in two years and that for only nine days' actual drill, and who in many cases are unprovided with drill) be expected to be efficient, and deserve who spoke English very well and was front in Guatamala Handwas Nicora Wicora Spin and the ships incident to the journey and the credit for continuing such organization in Canada and if the Government would do its duty by the Canadian volunteers mixture of Turk and Tartar. Says Gen. Herbert in his connection: The inferiority in every respect of the last, and most important arm, is very marked. The report of the Inspector of Engineers (Appendix L) contains some practical suggestions, for the reorganization of the so-called Engineer companies. I fully concur i the opinion he expresses. At present no corps of military Engineers can be bably the finest material in the world, from which to organize Pioneer Bat-

The summing up would be well worthy of reproduction, but space will not permit. It must be condensed. The commander-in-chief says that it is a organization and to suppose that, because a certain number of men are each year given twelve days' elementary instruction in military exercises, therefore, a military organization exists There can be no greater or more fatal misapprehension. The men thus drill ed are but the elements, from which a defensive military force may be created A chain of responsibility, maintained by competent staff-officers, must exist in order that the motive power of one mind shall reach all ranks. These are factors as necessary to the efficiency of a militia force, as they are to the suc cess of any commercial or industrial undertaking. Proposals have been submitted to the Government during the year for the appointment of a commission to enquire into the question of the issue as soon as possible.

In conclusion, Major General Herbert is the main issue, and all the twaddle which the Empire can print between order to keep off evil-doers.
