The Origin of the Easter Lilies.

Boston Transcript Within the rich man's garden

Full many a flower was seen. With crowns of gold and crimson On cups of emerald green. They brought the dead king thither. And every flower in bloom Bowed down its head in sorrow

About the Savior's tomb. But see! the white-winged angels Have rolled the stone away, And 'mid the flowers only

The white grave cerements lay. Next day they sought to find them . Lo! rising where they fell, Like the white hand of an angel. Waved there-a lily's bell. &

No pure, so white and spotless It pointed in the air. As if to tell new comers That He had risen there.

Born of His white robes fallen. Like white leaves folded so. They found a scepter gold and small Within each fragrant cup. And so amid the blossoms

Of the rich man's fragrant howers Was born the Easter lily-The angel of the flowers.
